HOLDING BILL GOES THROUGH

Governor Eben S. Draper's Boston & Maine Holding bill passed its third reading in the House of Representatives this afternoon.

Representative Washburn's substitute was defeated by a vote of 178 to 51.

Then Governor Draper's bill, which provides for a company to take over the 110,000 shares of Boston & Maine stock now held by John L. Billard, was passed by a vote of 150 to 49.

Never in the long history of the Legislature of Massachusetts has a more sensational or bitter debate taken place in the House than on the question of the substitution of Representative Washburn's bill for on the passing of Draper's bill to a third reading.

When the vote was taken on the Washburn substitute, instead of there being any vehement applause, as was expected from the overwhelming majority, the announcement of the vote was greeted with funeral silence.

"Waved Wand of Gold."

Representative Thomas F. Riley of Malden declared that "the railroad lobbyist have waved the silencing wand of gold and legislators are not going to vote on this question as their consciences dictate."

Vernal L. White of Brookline and Representative Washburn both arraigned Governor Draper in severe terms.

Representative Gardner, in charge of the Governor's bill as the representative of the State machine, closed the debate and censured Washburn and Riley for their speeches.

The following members of the House voted in favor of supporting the Washburn holding company bill for the Draper bill:

Egres, one of the nine defendants in the "business chance" case, at the resumption of trial before Judge Bond in the second session of the Superior Criminal Court. A score of attorneys were called to testify to the good character and reputation of Lawyer Egres. Among them were James H. Vahey, Thomas F. Vahey, David A. Manoviti, Philip J. Rotondi, Thomas F. Wildes, Judge Barnes, William Rosenau and others.

CALLS PROVIDENCE BAD AS CHICAGO

PROVIDENCE, June 15.—That Providence is worse than Chicago, and that there are more white slaves here than in the Windy City, were the startling statements made by Miss Margaret Dempsey, probation officer in the District Court, to Judge Gorham following the arraignment of Veronica Conroy, nineteen years old, of Boston, charged with being a lobbyist. "There are more white slaves in Providence in proportion to size than there are in Chicago," said Miss Dempsey, "and so far as conditions of that sort are concerned this city is worse than Chicago."

GOV. HUGHES' FATHER TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL

PASSAIC, N. J., June 15.—The Rev. Dr. D. C. Hughes, father of Governor Charles E. Hughes of New York, after preaching twice at the President Street Baptist Chapel, was taken ill at the Lexington House. Dr. Hughes' acute feeling as well as ever and ate a hearty breakfast. Soon afterward he became dizzy and was unable to stand. Examination proved the case not serious, and Dr. Armstrong said to-day that his patient would be able to go home in a day or two.

HUNTINGTON AVENUE GROUNDS, June 15.—There was something stirring every minute of the game to-day, the last contest of the series between the Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Naps. The reason for this was easily discovered for Manager Lake was not destined of being tied with a second division team, for that is what a defeat for the Red Sox meant.

Before sending his team of cripples on to the field, Manager Lake made notes to his players that did not listen like they were meant for Sunday school, and gave the boys to understand that though the Red Sox was a crippled bunch, errors were not wanted under the circumstances.

The Cleveland team, after to-day's contest, is slated to appear in New York where they meet the Highland Laddies for a bunch of four games. Lajoie, is as happy a man as could be imagined, for during the time the Naps coloured in Boston they crept up on the Red Sox and now as the Hiltoppers have been going badly Lajoie hopes to take a majority of the games from Stallings.

To-morrow the "Hitless Wonders" from Chicago strike Boston and stay ofr four contests, finishing up the week of baseball in Boston. The Comiskey boys have been going direly in the Hog Town and Lake does not look for any clean victories.

MRS. CLEVELAND ON WITNESS STAND

NEW YORK, June 15.—Mrs. Frances Folsom Cleveland, widow of former President Cleveland, was the first witness to be called to-day at the trial of Broughton Brandenburg, magazine writer, beofre Justice Fitzgerald, on the charge of grand larceny in the second degree. Brandenburg sold to a morning newspaper an article purporting to come from Mr. Cleveland, denouncing William Jennings Bryan. The article has been declared a fraud.

Fair and cooler to-day is the official forecast.

Real relief from heat made almost unbearable by a high degree of humidity to-day gratefully experienced. It's been a long, long time since Boston sweltered as it did yesterday, and the moisture in the air made conditions worse. Six prostrations from heat in Greater Boston tell yesterday's weather story.

The temperature at 8 o'clock to-day was 69. Forecaster Smith gave his official promise that the mercury would not climb high to-day. A ten-mile westerly breeze has blown the moisture far to sea. At 11 o'clock the thermometer showed 74 degrees, and at noon it had climbed to 76, but the overcast sky veiled the sun's rays and the breeze made the day really enjoyable.

All over the East the weather was stifling yesterday, but the West enjoyed itself because the temperature was not so excessive. The high point was 86 degrees. Yellowstone Park had a cold day with 40 degrees as the maximum, while in Chicago, where it was 92, the Doves and Cubs found it too cold to play.

William Page, aged twenty-four, and employed as a deck hand on steamship Bellflat at East Boston, was overcome by the heat while at work to-day, falling into the hold of the vessel and receiving injuries that necessitated his removal to the East Boston Relief Station.

TRIO FINED FOR SPEEDING.

Myron B. Clemens of Southbridge, George Simpson of Andover and Eugene Watson of Cambridge, caught in the auto trap at Wellesley last week, were to-day fined $15 each for overspeeding by Judge Grover in the Dedham District Court.

GIRL TELLS WHY SHE ELOPED WITH TARBOX

5000 R. R. MEN ASK MORE PAY

Five thousand freight handlers, the entire force employed by the Boston & Maine, the Boston & Albany, the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroads in their yards and along the water front of Boston, today sent a joint demand for a meeting with the officials to discuss an increase in wages and a shorter workday.

This demand is the outcome of several joint conferences between the various unions of which the freight handlers are members. It was decided upon only after a three months' discussion, during which time every phase of the question was debated.

Many Unions Involved.

Eight local unions are interested, five from the longshoremen, the Boston & Maine, the Boston & Albany and the New York & New Haven freight handlers locals.

The men prefaree their demands with a statement in which it is claimed that, while their wages have been increased only 25 cents a day during the last twenty years, the cost of living has advanced fully 50 per cent. The present wage is $2 for a ten-hour day. They also contend that, with the possible exception of the teamsters, they are the only body of organized workers in the State who are called upon to work a ten-hour day.

Asked whether or not a strike would be declared in case the officials of the various roads refused to grant the demands, the men on the committee chosen to represent the freight handlers stated that they hoped no strike would be necessary; that they preferred to exhaust every peaceful resource before discussing such a course.

Declare Demands Are Just.

"We rely on the justice of our cause, at present," said one of the union officers. "It is utterly impossible for a married man to live decently on $2 a day. But we are determined to stand by our demands, come what will."

The advance in wages asked for averages twenty-five cents a day, and the date set for it to become operative is July 15. The men are well organized, almost every freight handler employed in Boston being a good standing member of one of the eight unions concerned, and the demand to-day being sent to the railroad officials has been sanctioned by their national unions.

DAUGHTER OF DOUGLAS HURT

BROCKTON, June 15.—Mrs. Charles F. Richmond, daughter of former Governor William L. Douglas, is at her home in Elm street, rapidly recovering from the effects of a severe shaking up which she received Saturday night at Pookapsog postoffice when her automobile turned turtle following a collision with the car owned and driven by A. Herman Gill of Canton. Mrs. Richmond was returning from Boston with three women friends and her chauffeur, when they rounded a corner at Pookapsog when Mr. Gill's car crashed into the Richmond machine.

The big Richmond car turned turtle completely, the women and the chauffeur were thrown violently in every direction but Mrs. Richmond, was the most severely hurt. The Gill automobile was a wreck but the occupants suffered little injury. The Richmond car was little damaged.

FIND GIRL'S BODY IN ROOF WATER TANK

LOWELL, June 15.—Much mystery surrounds the death of Miss Helen Lord of Chelmsford Centre, whose body was found floating in a water tank on the roof of the home of her aunt, Mrs. Walter Perham. A small dog led the searching party to where the young woman's body was found. Miss Lord has been missing since Sunday. The young woman had been melancholy at times, and some of her friends believe she drowned herself during one of these attacks. An investigation is being made to reveal the facts.

ATTACKED MRS. GOULD AS DRUNKEN

NEW YORK, June 15.—To justify his abandonment of his wife, Viola Katherine Clemmons Gould, the single issue to which the case has now resolved itself, Howard Gould through his counsel to-day called a number of witnesses to rebut the strong case made out by the plaintiff. Mrs. Gould, dressed as she has been since the trial was begun before Justice Dowling, came into court with Clarence J. Shearn, her counsel. Her husband followed a few minutes later.

The efforts of the defence throughout the day was an attack upon Mrs. Gould.

The millionaire defendant found a chair near the entrance to the chamber and busied himself reading newspaper accounts of the proceedings. Mrs. Gould sat at the counsel table making notes of testimony consulting with her counsel, practically directing the case.

Before the session opened Delancy Nicoll gave to the reporters the following letter, which he said had been sent to him by his sister:

My Dear Del—If the enclosed refers to me, it is an absolute falsehood. I have never even seen the woman, nor do I know any of her associates. If she is under oath to tell the truth her statement is a gross perjury, and if this is a fair sample of her testimony the rest of it is probably as untrue. Such an untrue statement in print is most annoying to me, and is there anything else in the story?

Your affectionate sister,

CHARLOTTE NICOLL WESTON.

"The inclosed" referred to Mrs. Gould's retort to her husband's lawyer that she had given a discarded opera to Mr. Nicoll's sister, who was on the stage.

Mallory First Witness.

Maurice Mallory, the Castle Gould superintendent, recalled by Mrs. Gould of persecuting her, garbed in a dark brown, almost brick red, suit and speaking with a pronounced English accent, was called as the first witness.

"I am a land agent—a manager of estates," he said, after saying that he was 33 years old.

"I met Mr. and Mrs. Gould in New York in January, 1906, after talking with Mrs. Adolph Ladenburg in London. She

FRANCE DEFIED BY CARDINAL

BORDEAU, June 15.—Cardinal Andrieu, who has been summoned to court charged with having incited a breach of the laws by the allocution he pronounced at the Cathedral on the occasion of his enthronement, has sent a letter to the judge in which he formally refuses to appear in court to answer any charge in connection with the separation law.

The Cardinal writes:

"That law became nonexistent for Catholics the minute their supreme chief, the incorruptible guardian of the morals of individuals and nations, condemned it as inimical to the property, authority and liberty of the church."

BARS SPEECH AT POLITICAL DINNER

No speeches. Speaker Joseph Walker of the House of Representatives impresses the fact on those whom he has invited to a dinner at the Country Club, Brookline, tonight, he will entertain Governor Draper, Lieutenant-Governor Frothingham, the Committee on Rules and the House chairmen of the committees of the Legislature.

GETS 2½ YEARS FOR STEALING A PENNY

NEW YORK, June 15.—For stealing one cent John Curran was sentenced to State's prison for two and a half years by Judge Dike in the County Court, Brooklyn. Thomas Quigley, the owner of the penny, was standing in the doorway of a Fulton street lodging house when Curran came along and robbed him of the coin. It was the last cash he had in the world, he said.

Mae Devine's Own Story in Letter to Father and Mother Declares Faith in Man Who Fled with Her—Nothing of Former Marriage.

Her own story of her elopement and marriage to Bernard L. Tarbox, as it was written to her parents on her wedding day by Gertrude Mae Devine, the pretty nineteen-year-old Dorchester stenographer, is to-day made public for the first time in the AMERICAN.

The letter seems to show that the girl did not know that she was linking her life to that of a married man when she was wedded in Woonsocket on June 3. The letter, which follows, throws a new light on the remarkable action of the young couple:

"Dearest Dad and Mamma:—

"I hardly know just how to begin this letter, for there doesn't seem to be any beginning, it is simply all end. I knew that both of you have always had and always will have my welfare at heart, and although you will both probably feel badly at first at the way in which it was done, you will think better of it later on when you know that it was all for the best and that things could not have been otherwise.

"Nard would love to have visited at our house, but we both knew that there would be a great deal of opposition on the side of his family, and perhaps on my own, so we decided to do up everything quietly and then come and tell you about it. You both know that I have been proud, very proud of you. Whenever I have had company, I have always wanted you and introduced you. Nard is the only fellow that I have known well that has not been to my own home. I may have been stubborn and obstinate a great many times, but through it all I have loved you both.

Tells of Parting From Parents.

"You would have had to part with me some time anyway, and I wouldn't you rather know that I had married some man who can give me all the necessities of life. I know perfectly well that you have both done everything in your power for my comfort, and also realize that you have not had one, but six, to care for and look after; and I know you could not afford to give me a wedding and nice clothes, and know that you would do it and pinch on something else, if you knew, so now everything is easy as I need even make no excuse to Nard for not having any clothing.

"We were married to-day at Woonsocket, R. I., and were very careful to see that everything was properly done. We shall tour around a while in the machine, and I will let you hear from me continually and shall expect to hear from you. Now, Mama and Dad, please look at this matter sensibly and do not feel horribly about it.

"I have never done anything really bad, so you may rest assured on that score. I will be home in two months at the greatest extent of time, so you haven't gotten rid of me yet, you see.

"Give my love to all of the children and keep most of it for yourself, and remember me always as your loving but disobedient daughter.

"MAE.

"P. S.—Take care of each other; let me know how mamma is feeling and how dad's arm is getting on. We intend to stop in Springfield to-night, but will write and let you know just when and where word from you can reach me.

"MAE."

To Get Warrant for Tarbox.

Francis M. Carroll, attorney for William P. Devine, to-day said:

"We have never changed our plans in pursuing Tarbox. By Mr. Devine's trip to New York matters were delayed until yesterday. Mr. Devine thought he was carrying out plans that had been formed by us both. At the time all arrangements were made to have a warrant issued for the arrest of Tarbox. We will now ask that a warrant be granted, and made application yesterday at Woonsocket to the Chief of Police for a complaint.

"I have canvassed the situation with others concerned and feel that it is our duty to make application for a warrant. It is my belief as well as her parents that the girl did not know that Tarbox was a married man. A letter which she wrote the day of her marriage, Friday, June 3, post-marked Boston and which I found was mailed later in Boston by a friend of Tarbox, confirms the statement that Mae thought Tarbox was single.

"Mr. Devine knew nothing of the first marriage of Tarbox until he read the papers on June 7 and 8. He then came to see me. From the evidence we got and the way she talks of the affair, she never even suspected that the man was married. This whole procedure has been a bomb on her.

"She has told her mother about Tarbox, how good he was to her, how he cared for her while she was working for him. Her mother when she saw the affair getting the best of her wrote Mae to bring Tarbox to the house to meet her parents. This was to be a short time before she had run away.

"Three or four days prior to the elopement she began to take things away from the house. When her mother saw that she told her it was not right and that she first should bring Tarbox to the house and introduce him to her parents, as they could see what kind of a fellow he was and if he was one suited to marry their daughter.

"At that time she told her mother that she was to have been married to Tarbox the Monday before the Friday she eloped. Several days later she eloped. On the Friday that she was married her folks received a letter. The gist of this whole letter clearly shows that the girl thought she was legally married.

"The fact that Tarbox remarked in front of the girl in the presence of the clergyman, 'This is new to me,' shows he had deceived her as to his former marriage."

SCHOONER SUNK BY BIG STEAMER

NEW YORK, June 15.—With one passenger hurt from flying wreckage, her life boats splintered and her big starboard side showing the scars of a collision, the Holland-American liner Noordam came into port to-day.

There is a strong probability that the four-masted schooner William J. Bryan, which rammed the Noordam during a heavy fog between Nantucket and Fire Island test night, is at the bottom of the sea. Despite Captain Baugler's hunt of nearly an hour through the fog in an effort to find the schooner and offer her assistance he was unable to get any trace of her.

The injured passenger is W. B. Mather, whose ankle was struck and injured by a big splinter that had been sent flying through the air. Mather lives in Rochester, Pa.

The collision happened about 5:30 o'clock last night and was immediately followed by a panic on the Noordam.

HAUL SCHOONER OFF SHOVELFUL SHOALS

CHATHAM, June 15.—Captain Curley of the Monomoy Point Life-Saving Station and a crew of eight volunteers to-day pulled the two-masted schooner Priscilla off shovelful Shoals, where she went aground last night. Captain Fred Wolf of the schooner came ashore this morning and asked for help. The schooner grounded during a heavy fog. A vessel is coming here to tow the leaking craft to Boston.

GROUT WIDOWS SPLIT $280,000 ESTATE AT LAW

GREENFIELD, June 15.—Through a compromise effected to-day by attorneys for the contestants of the $280,000 will of William L. Grout, a wealthy automobile manufacturer of Orange, a bitter family war, which embroiled a whole town, has been brought to an end. The settlement made to-day disposes of the $280,000 Grout estate.

Grout died April 15, 1908. In 1894 he obtained a divorce from his first wife in Arizona, and she was supposed to have been given $100,000 in settlement. Soon after his divorce Grout married Eliza Reynolds of Brockton and Worcester. When Grout died each widow fought bitterly for the property and finally decided to settle the litigation. Several attempts were made by the heirs to break the Grout will.

The provisions of the will, dated Sept. 10, 1907, have been modified by agreement so that Ellen H. Grout of Orange, the first wife, receives $65,000. It was supposed that she had settled for $100,000.

By the will the second wife was bequeathed $100,000, the Grout home and the personal effects. Mrs. Nellie A. Graves of Springfield, a daughter of the first wife under the will, was given the income on $50,000 for life. Under to-day's settlement she will receive $45,000 outright. Mrs. Jennie L. Mills of Springfield, another daughter of the first wife, who also was given the income on $50,000, receives $45,000 outright.

Louis W. Grout of Springfield, a grandson, who was given the interest on $25,000 for life, receives $25,000 outright. Fred E. Grout, a son, who is now in Mexico, who was given the interest on $25,000 by to-day's settlement receives that sum outright.

Charles B. Grout and Earl A. Grout, both sons, who live in Orange and were cut off with $5 apiece by the will, are each given $25,000 outright.

The suit was settled by Attorneys Dana Malone, Charles N. Stoddard, U. S. District Attorney Asa P. French and W. H. Brooks of Holyoke.

THAW GETS NEW CHANCE FOR LIBERTY

NEW YORK, June 15.—Through a new writ of habeas corpus issued by Justice Gaynor, of the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, and made returnable before Justice Mills at White Plains at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Harry K. Thaw has begun a new fight for liberty.

This time the fight for freedom by the slayer of Stanford White promises to be the bitterest that he has ever made since being committed to the Matteawan Hospital. It was learned from Matteawan that the writ had been served on Dr. Robert K. Lamb, superintendent of the hospital, and that he will produce Thaw in person Thursday before the court.

The fact that this is to be a fight to the finish is borne out by the presence of Thaw's mother in the case. In his previous fights his mother had not taken an active part, and it is known that his first attempt to get out of the hospital was not in keeping with her wishes. It was also a move directly in opposition to the advice of Martin J. Littleton, and one of the reasons, it is said, that led to Littleton's dropping out of the case.

This time, however, the writ, it is said, was secured with the full knowledge and countenance of the ever Mrs. Thaw, and that she is behind every move that is made, both with money and advice. Because of this it is hinted that the matter will be fought bitterly. It was learned that the matter of Thaw's insanity will be the leading point at issue.

Both he and his mother hold he is not insane, nor has ever been so. It will be his contention also that were he insane at the time he shot White, he is perfectly well now.

This makes the fourth writ of habeas corpus that has been issued to Thaw since he was committed to Matteawan a year ago last February.

The Derelict's Passenger — The weirdly tragic conclusion of this great serial will appear in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

ALL ROYALTY AT THE ASCOT

LONDON, June 15.—The Ascot meet, socially the greatest event on the English racing calendar, opened to-day for James R. Keene's Ballot Cranford, and the imported 140 pounds, the Keene horse finished next to last in the field of six in the trial stakes. J. Daly's St. Michael, 4 to 1, was the winner, with J. B. Joel's Dean Swift, 13 to 8, second, and Sir H. W. Griffith's Edna M., 20 to 1, third.

Ballot carried top weight and after showing prominently in the early stages had to give way to his more lightly burdened competitors toward the end. Nevertheless he is viewed as a strong competitor for the classic Derby, the Gold Cup race, which will be run Thursday.

In the Gold Vase event to-day Lord Falmouth's Amadis, 5 to 2, won, with R. Mills's Jackdaw, 2 to 1, second, and J. Archibald's Bonnie, 100 to 7, third. No American horses competed.

Ascot week this year promises to eclipse anything in history for social brilliancy. With the King and Queen at the forefront all the nobility and wealth of the kingdom is represented and Americans have turned out in force. Many of the latter have taken cottages and plan to entertain extensively.

King Edward and Queen Alexandra drove in semi-state from Windsor.

The opening Ascot day was unique in that for the first time an American woman, the Countess of Granard, who was Miss Beatrice Mills of New York, had a place in the royal procession which made its way from Windsor Castle to the royal enclosure facing the Ascot course. This procession consisted of twelve four-horsed open carriages, with postilions, equerries and outriders in uniforms of royal scarlet, in accordance with the custom when the King drives in state.

ELINOR BEATTIE, THE SKETCH THAT PUT HER IN JAIL

NEWSBOYS GO TO 'WILD WEST'

A real Wild West show is encamped in the heart of the city. Yesterday afternoon and evening the first performances of this congress of riders and exposition of cowboys and ranch life were given at its home for the week on the Boston College Athletic Grounds, Massachusetts avenue.

The very atmosphere smacks of Oklahoma and most of the show teems with history of that State. The ranch from which the Miller Brothers' show comes is located there. The Indians on the program, the reproduction of the massacre of Fort Hennessey and the gentle schoolparty by the redskins, is one of the tragedies in the history of that State.

There is wild riding, straight and sure shooting, lariat throwing, bronco busting, steer taming and everything else on the calendar of a Wild West ranch.

At the show last night there were 500 newsboys, the guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN and the Miller Brothers. Now they did the war-whoop when the painted Indians appeared and how they did yell at the lariat throwing and at the Cossacks? Other newsboys, this time the same number Wednesday and the same number Friday will enjoy the show as joint guests of the BOSTON AMERICAN and the Miller Brothers.

Of course a Wild West show would not be complete without a generous display of rifle and revolver. There was a hold-up of the stage coach and the women passengers were made to dance to the music in breezy wholesomeness about the show that is refreshing.

Mountain Fire—Prince Von Sayn Wittgenstein, who is visiting in this country, tells this tale of the German Alps in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

TRAIL WOMAN BY CARICATURE

NEW YORK, June 15.—If John H. Taylor, a clerk employed by the Gorham Company, silversmiths at Fifth avenue and Thirty-fifth street, had not been a clever sketch artist, Eleanor Lorraine Beattie, formerly of New York, who was arrested in London under the name Miss Bruce Blake on a charge of grand larceny, might still be at liberty, although it is likely that her six feet of stature would have betrayed her.

Miss Beattie after getting away with more than $1,000 worth of goods from the Gorham people was speedily identified through a caricature Taylor made when she came shopping and was easily traced by means of the picture to the ship on which she had taken passage abroad.

LIGHTNING BREAKS OFF LEG OF BED

YORK, Me., June 15.—A bolt of lightning that struck the beautiful residence of Miss Bertha Perkins, a wealthy lumber merchant of this town, during a heavy electric storm early to-day, played peculiar freaks. The bolt crashed down the chimney, ran along the floor of Mrs. McIntyre's chamber, American politicians are instigating Spain shattered the leg of the bed in which she was sleeping and then tore into a closet. Here the bolt snapped up one pair of stockings and a large picture hat and left everything else in the closet intact.

BERSIN VICTIM OF NIHILISTS

NEW YORK, June 15.—The police have received information that the slaying of Samuel Bersin was the act of a secret political society, of which Bersin was a member, or one of which he had given information. It is said that he was one of those who supplied the Russian Secret Service with information against Jean Jaurès. Pouren at the time that Russian refugee was in his Tombs, and while an effort was being made by the Russian Government to have Pouren extradited.

FOUND NOT GUILTY OF FIRING STABLE

William T. Evans, the Chelsea truckman charged with setting fire to a stable in that city several months ago, when several horses were burned to death and two were found covered with oil, was to-day found not guilty by a jury in Superior Court before Judge Sanderson. The government's case was purely circumstantial. Developments tended to show that somebody other than Evans committed the deed. Evans owned two of the horses that were burned.

Jap Appeals to Tokio.

HONOLULU—The situation growing out of the indictment of seventeen leaders in the Japanese-language publication interests took an international turn when M. Negoro, of the editorial staff of the Jiji, a Japanese publication, who was locked into custody when the office of that paper was raided, made formal complaint to the Japanese Foreign Office at Tokio of the violations of his treaty rights. DEWEY HIRES AN ATTORNEY

Judge Sherman of the Superior Court to-day granted former Judge Henry A. Dewey until August 2 to file a bill of exceptions on his motion for a new trial of his $70,000,000 suit against members of the Good Government Association. Judge Sherman leaves Boston on his vacation on June 24. He has notified both sides to file their briefs and that he will decide the motion for a new trial on those briefs instead of hearing an oral argument. Former Judge Dewey to-day announced that he has secured a prominent Boston attorney to handle his case for him.

"The attorney will take charge of my suit from now until the case is finally disposed of," he said.

ALL BAFFLED BY GEM THEFT

The mystery surrounding the disappearance of $2,000 worth of diamonds and watches, which had been placed with the Congress Investment Company, No. 4 Post-office square, for safe keeping, is to-day greater than ever. Solomon Phillips, the treasurer of the concern, is completely mystified.

The watches and jewels had been placed in a box and kept in the safe. They were there on Saturday when Mr. Phillips locked the safe.

Yesterday morning when the young woman, who is his assistant, opened the safe, the box and valuables were missing. Neither Phillips nor the young woman had been in the office since Saturday. When the young woman came there yesterday morning the place was locked, so was the iron fence in the protective grating that shuts off the safe from the other parts of the office. The safe, too, was locked.

Although the police and the Pinkerton detective agency are both working on the case absolutely no light has been thrown on the mystery.

It is not known who the owner of the stolen valuables is.

WOMAN SAVES SIX HORSES IN BLAZE

Mrs. Michael Colombo is quite a heroine out in Dedham to-day because of her brave work in saving six horses from being burned to death.

At 5 o'clock as she was getting her husbands breakfast she saw that the two-story building in Washington street, right behind where she lived, was on fire. Back of this building was Snow Brothers' stables in which were six horses. Mrs. Colombo sent her husband to pull the alarm, and she, with Dan Callahan, whom she summoned by her cries, went into the Snow Brothers stable and took out the six horses. Three horses in another stable perished. The damage was $3,000.

WINS BRIDE AT BLARNEY CASTLE

Beginning with a chance meeting on top of old Blarney Castle, a romance in which Timothy J. Kiely, a rich shoe manufacturer of Lynn, and Miss Anastasia Herlihy, one of the prettiest school teachers in that city, are the principals, will be concluded to-morrow night when the Rev. Dr. John C. Harrington will marry them in the parsonage of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church.

Kiely is a widower with two pretty children. Last week he gave his bride-to-be a handsome home completely furnished and said do he worth not less than $10,000.

ZIONISTS FAVOR TURKISH POLICY

NEW YORK, June 15.—At to-day's session the twelfth annual convention of the Federation of American Zionists placed itself on record as desiring to preserve the entirety of the Ottoman Government, merely reserving a hope for the Jewish people in Palestine. This action was taken in pursuance of a suggestion from Dr. J. L. Magnes, who told the convention that as soon as the Jewish population organizes it will have for the first time a representative in the Turkish Parliament.

KISSED 15 MEN; WOMAN FINED $10

MILWAUKEE, June 15.—"Just think of it, no kiss in three months, and just because I kissed fifteen men on a stretch he arrested me for being disorderly. He has no temperament whatever," said Agnes Sobanak, charged with kissing fifteen men one after another at the front gate of her home. Patrolman Loetsinger made the arrest. "Was she a good kisser?" asked Judge Neelen. "Well, she was certainly going some when I saw her. One would have thought she had not kissed in ten years," replied the patrolman. "She kissed more sorts of kisses in thirty minutes than I ever knew existed. She cannot be beat at osculation."

"It is true, judge," tearfully sobbed Mrs. Sobanak, "but I had been at the workhouse for three months without a single kiss." "Ten dollars and costs," answered the judge.

JANE ADDAMS IS NEW CHARITY HEAD

BUFFALO, N. Y., June 15.—Miss Jane Addams of Hull House, Chicago, is the President of the National Conference of Charities and Correction for 1910. The election was unanimous. This is the first time in the history of the conference, covering thirty-six years, that a woman has been at the head of the organization. The other officers elected were: First vice-president, H. Nitecelo Torrey, Mills, Pa.; second vice-president, Ansley Wilcox, Buffalo, N. Y.; third vice-president, Judge William H. De Lacy, Washington, D. C.; general secretary, Alexander Johnson, Fort Wayne, Ind.

BALLOT BEFORE MARRIAGE, SAYS MRS. BELMONT

NEW YORK, June 15.—"There is one way women could get the ballot all over the world in eighteen months. That way would be for every woman to take an oath not to marry until woman suffrage was granted. But women haven't the courage to attempt it. They would be too much afraid of losing their chances of that precious thing, a husband, which, unfortunately, they have been taught to prize."

Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, who has just returned from a trip abroad, presented this solution of the suffrage question to the women of America in an interview here. She declared that women have been going up while men have been coming down, and that she cannot understand how any woman who respects herself can refuse to vote when she has the right of the ballot.

"Would you be afraid of a man if you had a rifle in your hands?" she asked. "All human right, all great reforms, have been brought about by bloodshed; by force. Of course, I am speaking merely of the women of England." Other methods may prove effective here." Then she suggested her plan for women to refuse to marry until they win the suffrage, and added: As it is, I think every woman suffragist should pledge herself to not marry out of the cause.

"I think that if most women over eighteen told the truth they would say that they hate men. But, of course, under the present unjust and unequal conditions they conceal their feelings. How many wives would dare tell their husbands what they really think of them? How long would the husbands live with them if they did?

"What is a home to-day? Often the loneliest place on earth. The American idea that it is degrading to the wife to work after marriage is the cause of much unhappiness. Every woman should have a trade or profession and should continue to work as it after she becomes a wife, as I have been and am interested in a great many working women who work for a living, and when they have married I have almost always urged and in many cases prevailed on them to continue at work.

"Sad as it may be, most children have a contempt for their mothers, and frequently the mother is the husband's servant."

MRS. GUNNESS' AID DYING IN PRISON

LAPORTE, Ind., June 15.—It is learned that Ray Lamphere, notorious through his association with Mrs. Gunness, the wife murderess, is dying in the Michigan City Prison, where he is serving a twenty-year sentence for the burning of the Gunness home. His sister has received a letter from him requesting her to come and see him. The prison officials, however, refused her admission, saying that Lamphere was extremely low and could see no one.

Gould Employe Tells of Life at Castle

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Family Secrets Are Disclosed on Stand

Mrs. Katherine Clemmons Gould on the Witness Stand.

asked me if I wanted to take an agency on Long Island for the Goulds. As the result, I came to New York from Liverpool on January 6.

"What did you do when you arrived," asked Lawyer Watson for the defense.

"I found the Goulds were racing and after three weeks I was invited to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Gould at the St. Regis."

Watson tried to have the witness detail the conversation Mellor had had with the Gould, but he was balked by Shearn's objections.

"Interference with servants is no ground for abandonment," said Justice Dowling in ruling against Lawyer Watson.

Court Warns Attorney.

"On February 6 I called on the Kaiser Wilhelm Der Grosse, with Mrs. Gould and Mr. Sells," said Molloy when the questioning was resumed. Again Justice Dowling interrupted Watson to caution him.

"You must either show that your client has not abandoned his wife or else that if he did he was justified," ruled the court.

"Did you see Mrs. Gould under the influence of liquor in June, 1906?" then asked Watson.

Mr. Shearn objected. He declared that even if it were shown that Mrs. Gould was in that condition it did not justify her husband in abandoning her.

"He had abandoned his wife before that," said Mr. Shearn. "It has been held in this State from the earliest stages that intoxication is no justification for alimony. The conduct that will justify abandonment is one has would support as affirmative decree for separation."

This precipitated a long argument that ended only when the court interrupted.

"It seems to me that habitual intoxication would be justification for abandonment," commented Justice Dowling in reply to Delancy Nicoll, who had taken up the fight for Gould.

Drank Hard for Years.

"Undoubtedly," added Mr. Nicoll, "and we propose to show that for a number of years, starting in 1902 and 1903, the plaintiff drank excessively. So much so that her personality was changed," said Mr. Nicoll.

"You ought to show 'continued intoxication,'" offered Justice Dowling.

"We do not contend that she was intoxicated for five years," said Mr. Nicoll. "If she had been she would not be alive today."

Mrs. Gould laughed at this sally of her husband's counsel.

"We have enumerated occasions during the period, added Mr. Nicoll, referring to his answer in the case.

"I will overrule the objection," ruled the court, after the argument closed.

Molloy was directed to question in regard to having seen Mrs. Gould intoxicated in June, 1908.

Drinking Aboard Yacht.

Mr. Shearn renewed his objection and was defeated. He insisted that the witness should be compelled to give dates and to go into detail only as to charges made in "the answer in the case."

Mrs. Gould was under the influence of liquor early in June, when the yacht Niagara returned from Europe," testified Molloy.

"I won't swear to the date."

"Where was she?"

"Aboard the Niagara."

PASTOR REJECTS STORY OF THE FALL

NEW YORK, June 15.—Although Rev. Archibald Black, a young Edinburgh theological graduate, declares that he does not believe the biblical account of Adam and Eve, the birth of Christ or the resurrection, he was admitted to-day to the pulpit by the New York Presbytery after a warm debate on heresy. Among the questions fired at the young theological student were the following:

"Do you believe the story of Adam and Eve as related in the Bible?"

"Not in its literal sense; I accept it as a figure," he replied.

"And do you not believe that they fell from eating the apple?" "No."

"Do you believe in the divine birth of Christ?" "I believe that Christ is divine, but I do not accept the story of his birth."

"What is your position as to the resurrection?" "I do not believe in the flesh and blood resurrection of Christ."

THROW KEROSENE TO KILL OHIO MAYOR

BELLEFONTAINE, O., June 15.—What is believed to have been an attempt to assassinate Mayor Willms E. Niven and burn his residence in this city was made early to-day, when a burning bottle filled with kerosene was thrown through the large plate glass window. The Mayor was away and did not return until a half-hour later. The bottle was wrapped with rags saturated with oil, and was blazing. The curtains, carpets and all furniture in the room were set on fire. Mayor Niven was elected on a "dry" ticket two years ago. Two policemen heard the crash and saw a man running away. The outrage is attributed to cafe men.

LUCKY BALDWIN'S WIDOW TO MARRY

Dr. Landone has figured in Los Angeles as a lecturer on child culture, and Mrs. Baldwin is greatly interested in the doctor's theories on breeding and raising children as Luther Burbank does plants and flowers. Dr. Landone recently made a tour of the United States, selecting twelve children with whom to begin his experiments. They are installed at the Hollywood home.

DENIES SHE STOLE $10,000 DOCTOR'S LOVE

Mrs. Lilla O. Hay, the defendant in the suit for $10,000 brought against her by the estate of Dr. John W. E. Laxton of Lynn, who charges Mrs. Hay with stealing the doctor's affections, took the witness stand to-day in the first session of the Superior Civil Court before Judge Fessenden and emphatically denied that her relations with Dr. Laxton, by whom she was employed as secretary, were in any way improper.

Just before the close of her direct examination Mrs. Hay was asked if she ever sought to alienate the affections of Dr. Laxton. She denied it emphatically, saying:

"I have never sought to alienate the affections of Dr. Laxton. I ran away before my God that I never did. I never intended to deprive Mrs. Laxton of her husband's love. I continually pleaded with them to stay together. I would never go between a man and his wife. I am a married woman myself and I know that every woman who has some children should live with her husband, and I would be glad if Dr. Laxton and his wife were together now."

Mrs. Hay broke down and wept as she made this passionate statement.

Mrs. Hay also denied that she had ever been in Dr. Laxton's room when he was other than properly clad. Mrs. Hay was questioned by her attorney, S. K. Hamilton. She answered all his questions in a firm, decided manner and without the slightest hesitation. Mrs. Hay wore a stylish blue tailored suit with a large blue hat trimmed with a huge white plume.

Doctor Was Escort.

Q.—Did you ever go to Lynn with Dr. Laxton at a late hour at night? A.—Yes, but only once. During the first year that he opened his Boston office I met the Fremont street car which ran to the ferry and I was afraid to walk down to Atlantic avenue alone at that hour. I went back to the office at No. 543 Boylston street and when I got back there the doctor said he was going home to Lynn so he would go down with me. We went down to Lynn together and I went right home. My father and mother live the same block as I did we went into the same building at the same time.

Q.—An incident was spoken of here relative to your coming back from a trip to Brooklyn, N. Y. Tell us about that. A.—I was on my vacation at that time and I went with my cousin, Mrs. Alden, who lived in Cambridge, but who has since died. We went to visit another cousin of mine, Mrs. Long, in Brooklyn.

Q.—Where did you stay every night that you were away on that trip? A.—At the home of my cousin, Mrs. Long, in Brooklyn.

Q.—Did Dr. Laxton go with you on that trip? A.—No.

Q.—Was he there while you were there? A.—No.

Q.—Where did you see him on the day that you returned from Brooklyn? A.—In Lynn, that afternoon, at his office in Lynn.

Q.—Who paid the expenses of that trip to Brooklyn? A.—I did.

Q.—Did Dr. Laxton pay any part of the expenses of that trip? A.—No.

Officers' Plan of Offices.

Mrs. Hay, during her testimony, described the offices that Dr. Laxton occupied, first at Exchange street, Lynn, and later on Boylston street, Boston. She took from the pocket of her jacket a sketch of the offices, and stepping from the witness stand, went to the jury box to the jurors, describing the location of the various rooms. She then returned to the witness stand.

Q.—What was your salary when you first entered Dr. Laxton's employ? A.—I worked for $7 a week, and my rent when I moved to Lynn was $8 a week, in 1895.

Q.—How long did you continue to work at that salary? A.—Three years. In 1897 he raised my salary $1 a week.

Q.—When was the next change in your salary? A.—In 1898 he gave me $12 a week and my rent.

Q.—Did you prepare medicines for patients? A.—I may have given them pills.

Q.—Why did the doctor open up an office in Lynn? A.—His business increased so much that he could not accommodate the patients here.

Advance in Salary.

Q.—In 1900 was another change made in your salary? A.—Yes.

Q.—What was the occasion for an increase in your compensation in 1900? A.—I was obliged to devote all my time to the office, as the business grew and increase and the doctor granted it.

Q.—And at this time your husband was working for Dr. Laxton, too? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was that your salary increased to in 1900? A.—It was increased to $25 a week.

Q.—Now, come down to the separation between you and your husband. What was the cause of that separation? A.—Well, I went to see my father at Nantucket, where he was living with another relative. I found that he was not being treated as he wanted to be. He came to live with me here in September early in October of 1904. Because of my father's condition, I asked my husband to let my father sleep in his bed. My husband objected, and so I made up a bed on the couch for father. My husband didn't want my father in the house, so I left the next morning, taking my father with me.

Accepted Doctor's Offer.

Q.—Was that the only cause of your separation from your husband? A.—That was all.

Q.—Has your husband since that time contributed one cent toward your support or towards your father's? A.—Not a cent.

Q.—How did you happen to go to No. 90 Exchange street to live? A.—That was Dr. Laxton's office. I went to the office that morning with my father and told Dr. Laxton that I would like to be off for a few hours in order to look up some rooms where father and I could live. Dr. Laxton peremptorily said that I could look after him if he was there and do my work at the same time, so I decided to accept his offer.

VANDERBILT IN FLIGHT DOWN DUMBWAITER IN MRS. RUIZ'S APARTMENT

NEW YORK, June 15.—More incidents of the Vanderbilt-Ruiz romance are coming to light following the exposure of the suicide of Mrs. Ruiz in London.

The full story of how Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt made an acrobatic escape down a dumbwaiter shaft from the apartments of Mrs. Ruiz at No. 598 Lexington avenue and eluded a bunch of reporters who had camped on the steps of the house by climbing over a rear fence was learned today from persons who lived in the house or were employed there, and from others who knew more or less about the relations of Mr. Vanderbilt and the wife of Antonio Ruiz.

It was on the eve of Mr. Vanderbilt's departure for London last year that he performed his dumbwaiter stunt. Rumors concerning the name of Mrs. Ruiz with that of Mr. Vanderbilt had been in circulation for some time, and several reporters who suspected he was visiting the woman in her apartment on the second floor of the house facing Fifty-second street were waiting on the stoop for him to come out.

Mrs. Ruiz Invents Plan.

Frantic to devise some means by which Mr. Vanderbilt could escape without being seen, and knowing that she could not go downstairs herself without raising suspicion, Mrs. Ruiz, with the help of Mr. Vanderbilt, let herself down by the dumbwaiter to the basement, where the superintendent, Mr. Pickwell, received her in his basement.

In hurried whispers she explained the situation to him, and Mr. Pickwell volunteered to show what assistance he could. He conversed with Mr. Vanderbilt up the shaft and then sent the dumbwaiter back to Mrs. Ruiz's apartment.

Pickwell took a good hold on the rope and the grandson of old Commodore Vanderbilt climbed out by the kitchen shaftway, stood on the top of the dumbwaiter and was gently lowered to the basement by Pickwell. He had the rope after a way that might have been another story to tell than that of the tragic end of Mrs. Ruiz in London.

Boosted Over a Fence.

Once in the basement, Pickwell led Vanderbilt out to the yard in the rear. On the Lexington avenue side there is a wooden fence, something over an ordinary man's height and up this fence Superintendent Pickwell "boosted" the heir of many millions just as one trained will help another to evade detection.

It was a easy drop to the Lexington avenue sidewalk, and as soon as he felt his feet on firm ground again Vanderbilt, it is said, took to his heels and ran like a deer. The reporters who were waiting patiently finally went back to their offices, believing Mrs. Ruiz had told the truth when she said Mr. Vanderbilt was not in her apartment, and that she did not know where he was.

The next day Mr. Vanderbilt sailed to begin his coaching trips between London and Brighton, and as the steamer went down the bay a decree of divorce being signed in the Supreme Court in favor of Mrs. Elsie French Vanderbilt. Nothing in the evidence in that case connected Mrs. Ruiz with Vanderbilt, but that was simply because it was not considered judicious then to reveal the fact of his relations with Mrs. Ruiz.

Valet Carried Clothing There.

Instead, his valet, who was the chief witness for Mrs. French, told of his master's relations with another woman whose name never became public. The same witness could as well have told of the Ruiz affair, for it was he who took to the Ruiz apartments every morning, when his master was away from home, a change of clean linen and a suit case full of clothing.

It was only when the Vanderbilt decree became final and effective that Antonio Ruiz filed suit for divorce in the Westchester County Court at White Plains. That action was tried before George A. Wyeth as referee, and Pickwell, superintendent of the Lexington avenue house, and William Williamson, a negro elevator boy in the house, were called as witnesses. The story of Mr. Vanderbilt's romantic escape was touched upon lightly at the hearings before Mr. Wyre, and other evidence was given showing that Mr. Vanderbilt was a frequent visitor at the house.

COMMONS STARTS ITS INVESTIGATION OF RUIZ TRAGEDY

LONDON, June 15.—The trail of bribery in the Ruiz case will be tracked to its source. This will be brought about by the parliamentary inquiry started by Peter Curran, a member of the House of Commons.

Curran's question is addressed to Herbert Gladstone, the home secretary, whose department includes prisons, prisons and police, and asks:

"Whether Mr. Gladstone's attention has been called to recent statements in the newspapers in connection with the inquest held at the St. Pancras coroner's court on May 10, concerning the death of Mrs. Ruiz; without any opportunity being given to newspapers to report the proceedings; whether the customary public notice of an inquest was given; whether it is the fact that the coroner, when asked afterwards for a copy of the depositions so that they might receive publicity, declined to afford the facility and further, whether it is in accordance with custom that coroner's inquests should be held in private."

Vanderbilt Sees Error.

Despite the fact that Alfred G. Vanderbilt has just won the great cocoanut Marathon he looks gloomy and is plainly under a severe strain. The truth is that the effort to conceal the tragedy is exciting infinitely more gossip than would have been provoked had every circumstance of Mrs. Ruiz's death been made known at once.

"Mr. Vanderbilt is convinced now," said one of his friends today, "that the attempt to suppress the facts was the worst possible course, and he is bitterly reproachful of those who advised it."

The notice given in the house committee that Peter Curran had a question relative to the tragedy put on the printed list seemed to cause Mr. Vanderbilt unusual uneasiness than anything else. Every newspaper in London has printed stories of the woman's suicide and of the secrecy thrown around it, and named Mr. Vanderbilt in its columns.

TAFT AT CHURCH PICNIC AUGUST 6

WASHINGTON, June 15.—August 6 was fixed by Mr. Taft, after secretary to President Taft, as the date for the Sunday school of the Bethel Church to hold its picnic at Point of Pines, Revere.

MEN WIN ALL 'LOVE-AT FIRST SIGHT' PRIZES

"Just to think," sighed Rosalind Coghlan. "I went and awarded all three money prizes in the 'Love at First Sight' contest to men. But how was I to tell? They all signed their initials and how was any one to know whether 'D. W. Jones' was a pretty girl of eighteen or a fat man of fifty? I just waded in and picked out what I thought were the best letters. I am not a traitor to my sex. It's just that men may not know as much about love as women, but they know better how to write about it.

"The winner of the first prize is Libor A. Meister. He is foreman for the Hugh Nawn Construction Company and has been a railroad man. Would you think that he would know as much about love at first sight as some fluffy little thing, with yellow hair and a rose-bud parasol? Of course you wouldn't, but that is where you would be mistaken.

First Love Uncertain.

"Mr. Meister is forty-eight years old and has a wife and three children. He minused himself in his spare time by working in his garden in the little town of Sharon and taking care of a coonful of pigs and chickens. It just shows that still waters run deep. Mr. Meister believes that a first telegraph operator is a man drummer are so accustomed to using people that they can recognize their agnatty on sight. I think he's right but I don't see how.

"Then there was A. G. Howard, I thought he might be a man because he was rather cynical, but out of pickle are cynical, too, if they have been disappointed in love. He was cautious and thoughtful that while people can fall in love at first sight they are not apt to fall out so soon and sight. His was a very nice letter and showed a the appreciation of the subject. Still, he turned out to be a man. He is a chauffeur, twenty-two years old, and his front name is Alexander. He says he has had experienced love at first sight several times and knew it couldn't be depended upon from personal experience. He may be right, too. Fortunately, he was not called upon to decide that, but only to pick out the best written letters.

"Then came the third letter. L. Morrison. Now 'L' might stand for Lily, or Lila, or Laura, or some other nice name. Instead it stands for Lee, and he also is a man. Did you ever hear of such a thing, girls? Lee Morrison lives at No. 12 Quincefield street, Dorchester. He is a manufacturer of perfume extracts and toilet articles. He is married, and a believer in 'Love at First Sight.' He says:

Some Credit for Women.

"'If you notice a few of the matches that are made you will see that many of the brainest men and women have fallen in love at first sight. The wonder is that there are so many good matches out of so small chances.

"'They are all very nice men; that is some consolation. But I am really surprised that Boston women make such a poor showing beside the men. Perhaps the Boston women are so erudite that they wouldn't waste time writing about love. I think, however, that it was just chance after all that made the three best letters come from the pen of men, and you may be pretty sure, anyway, that the women inspired them. Let's console ourselves with that.'

On being informed of his good fortune Mr. Meister said: "I read the American every day and take much interest in the contests and puzzles. Of course I am pleased to have won the prize, but I consider I am grateful both to the American and Miss Coghlan.

"I saw the notice of the contest in the American and I thought I would send in my opinion," wrote Mr. Howard. "I wrote the letter in about fifteen minutes.

"The Boston American is easy reading," remarked Lee Morrison. "And that is a very important thing, for the great mass of people are hard workers and when they get home at night they want the news told plainly. And besides that, the American is always entertaining in its several very clever departments."

INSANE GIRL IS FOUND IN WOODS

GREENWICH, Ct., June 15.—After having spent the greater part of the night in the woods dressed only in a nightgown, a girl of fifteen, who is believed to be demented and who escaped from the Greenwich Hospital last evening, was found today. She was exhausted and almost paralyzed with fright. When arrested on a broadcast that the girl had escaped from the hospital the question of the young citizen class of the local high school and a fashionable lawn fete were going on near by, but the merrymakers gave up their evening's pleasure and joined in the hunt. Men in evening dress and women in party gowns scoured the woods all night, swarming over rocks and jumping brooks in the quest.

NEW LAW TO HALT A RAISE IN WIRE TOLL

To prevent the telegraph companies charging extra for inserting the time messages are filed for transmission within the State as now provided by law, Representative William H. O'Brien of Dorchester is going to try to put an amendment through the Legislature expressly stating that no additional charge shall be made.

So great is the storm of protest being raised against the decision of the telegraph companies to increase the tolls upon a day that Mayor George A. Hibbard intends to go before the Massachusetts Highway Commission and ask it to compel the corporations to scale down their rates to the former figures.

Say They Will Suffer.

The officials of the telegraph companies say that not more than 5 per cent. of the business they do is affected by the change, as they are not compelled to place the time messages are sent on interstate business. The managers of the telegraph companies believe they must charge for the transmission of the time or suffer a loss.

The "time filing law" goes into effect at midnight to-night. The act was passed on May 12, and Governor Draper allowed it to become a law on May 17 without signing it. It is a penal statute and takes force just a month later, or to-night.

Representative M. J. Reidy, an expert telegraph operator, to-day said:

"The contention of the telegraph companies has been that the Highway Commission has full jurisdiction over rates and service of telegraph companies. The Highway Commission did not, however, order the law it had power to direct that the filing shall be free, and the law simply addresses' copy of telegrams within the State.

Defying the Legislature.

"The appropriate place to put the filing time is in the date line or in a space made for that purpose in the check. The words night letter, 12 p. m., and telephone, just the time necessary to make a check like that.

"The action of the telegraph companies can only be construed as an insolent defiance of the Grant and General Court's power to make laws. The bill is a good one, and the merchant will now learn how the big companies neglect to handle his telegraphic business promptly.

"In European countries the filing time is made to appear, and it should appear on telegrams in this State and in interstate telegrams without charge.

"It is not the extra time required to put in '11:25 a. m.' that bothers the companies, but it is the knowledge that now they must give service that really annoys them.

Representative O'Brien declared that his sentiments were exactly as expressed by Mr. Reidy.

GREAT PARADE IN PLANS OF SUFFRAGISTS

NEW YORK, June 15.—If Mrs. Chapman Catt, international president of the Women Suffragist Alliance, carries out the plan she proposed to-day at the closing business meeting for the season of the International Women Suffrage Council, New York will witness in the Fall one of the greatest street parades of suffragettes ever seen. It is planned to make it more remarkable than the London demonstration. Every woman in New York who favors equal suffrage in any degree will be asked to take a banner in the mile and half portion upon the highway in this monster celebration.

Mrs. Catt's idea was talked about informally yesterday afternoon at the welcome home given to her in the Hotel Astor by the Incorporated Woman Suffrage Council. Other guests equally prominent were the New York City delegates to the London Congress, among whom were Mrs. Oliver H. P. Belmont, Mrs. William L. Ivins and Mrs. Ida Husted Harper.

Would Gladly Die for Cause.

Mrs. Ida Craft presided, and had at her side on the platform Mrs. Frederick Nathan, the Rev. Anna Shaw, Mrs. Charlotte Wilbour and Mrs. Crossett, the New York State president of the Equal Suffrage Association.

Among those made by Mrs. Nathan, Mrs. Catt and the Rev. Anna Shaw.

"I'll go to my cell gladly and give the vote to women if I gladly die," said Mrs. Taylor, "if such fighting policemen on the street I could gain the suffrage for women I would gladly submit to it."

Cheers from all over the house greeted this statement, which were an answer to a question put by Mrs. Catt when Dr. Shaw was asked as to what lengths the kingly suffragette was going for the cause. It was evident from the remarks from both Mrs. Catt and the Rev. Mrs. Shaw that the three months spent in suffrage work in London had turned them far more radical than they were when they left this country.

Canvass of Women.

Mrs. Shaw proposes a canvass of all women interested in suffrage.

"We can go out and work," she said, "against candidates to Congress and other offices whom we find through a canvass are opposed to the cause of women. I expect to start in the Fall bodies of suffragists be given sections in which to conduct their efforts in opposing candidates for election and working against them if they are opposed to suffrage for us. I am neither a Republican, Democrat, Prohibitionist or Unionist. I am only a woman, and cannot be more until I am given my vote. I take the stand that there is no opposite to the vote for women are my enemies, and I believe in fighting them."

HELD UP UNCLE JOE'S JOY RIDE

WASHINGTON, June 15.—There is a law against speeding automobiles in Washington, and Speaker Cannon, who helps to make laws for the District of Columbia, has discovered it.

The Speaker left the Capitol in his touring car to go to the baseball game. With him were ex-Senator Hemenway and ex-Representative Watson of Indiana, Representative Vreeland of New York and one or two other friends.

The Speaker told his chauffeur to "let her go," and the car went.

Just as the party was beginning to congratulate itself on the prospect of reaching the ball park in time for the game, a bicycle policeman rounded a corner and started in pursuit of Mr. Cannon's auto.

He overhauled it and ordered the chauffeur to stop. The policeman said the machine had been going at forty miles an hour.

The officer contented himself with noting the car's number and cautioning the chauffeur not to drive too fast hereafter. "Uncle Joe" promised, for his chauffeur, to be good, and the party proceeded slowly.

GREAT SHOWS AT WONDERLAND

Wonderland began its fourth week of this season Saturday with a brand new minstrel show, all colored and all artists, back and wing dancers from the Southland, three indies and four men who need no blacking up, and they are a revelation.

The "1905 Minstrels" of Wonderland are right in their "home sign" and can they sing? Go and hear them. They are the real thing in Southern minstrels.

Saturday and Sunday were big days at Wonderland, the combination park tickets giving ten shows and park admission going for a quarter, and the vaudeville was certainly filled up the high rides to capacity, while the productions, such as the "Wondrous Pompei and Herculaneum," the "Golden Graces" and the mammoth vaudeville, were often packed to overflowing.

Commencing and to-day, the SUNDAY AMERICAN free tickets were overwhelmed in evidence, three times the numbers of past weeks, testifying to the continued popularity of the SUNDAY AMERICAN plan of free park amusements for its readers.

The evening AMERICAN this week will announce the free ticket layout for next Sunday, the usual number of free tickets, "passe partout" worth of park enjoyment absolutely free of cost, and the dozen or so half fare tickets.

A classified advt. is often the road to fortune.

TO LEXINGTON PARK; NO BILLS TO PAY

Out in Lexington Park, where almost everything is free inside the gate, and where the SUNDAY AMERICAN furnishes free admission for two days in the week through its SUNDAY AMERICAN free ticket, the bears and monkeys are waiting for the little folks bringing candy and peanuts. The other 100 animals from all over the world will be visited to-day and Friday by a multitude of readers of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN. The shade of the park grove is being eagerly sought these sultry days, and the season is on in earnest. Next Sunday's BOSTON AMERICAN will publish another free ticket to park admission, saving the coupon holders no cents at the park gate.

If You Have Any Hair Trouble Read This

People might as well look facts in the face and not be humbugged any longer by dangerous and worthless preparations for the hair. The vital point to remember is this: Dandruff is the direct cause of nearly every case of baldness, and is the principal cause of many other ailments of the hair and scalp. The one thing needed above all other things to overcome dandruff and give the hair the right kind of health is cleanliness. You have got to clean the scalp of scales and dandruff, and you have got to keep the pores of your scalp open, before you can hope to have beautiful hair. From the sebaceous glands on your head there constantly comes an oily secretion to moisten the scalp and give a gloss to the hair. Floating in the air are millions of fine particles of dust, dirt and disease germs. These settle upon the head, mix with the oily secretion, and in a very short time dandruff and scales are formed. These scales stop up the pores, so that the hair roots are not nourished as they should be. And then the hair becomes sick, dies and falls out. Some people allow all this dirt and disease and filth to accumulate on their heads for weeks or months without washing the scalp and hair. Everybody's head and hair ought to be washed at least once a week, no matter what anybody else tells you. But don't make the mistake of using common soaps and shampoos. Common soaps contain too much alkali, and they leave the hair dry and harsh, and they do not leave the scalp in a healthy condition. Improper soaps and shampoos actually do more harm than good. You should use the one thing in all this world which is above suspicion and above criticism, and that is Birt's Head Wash. It is made of Refined Soap, Cochin Cocoanut Oil, White of Eggs, Glycerin and Salicylic Acid. This formula is so generally recognized as proper that you are invited to ask any physician you know what he thinks about it. Birt's Head Wash doesn't simply take off the dirt, dandruff, germs and microbes, but it leaves the scalp soft and moist and the hair fine and glossy. The first time you use Birt's Head Wash you can see an improvement in your hair, and its regular use will help to completely overcome dandruff. You will be astonished how many impurities will be found in your hea.' and hair, because nothing takes them out like Birt's Head Wash. Price 50 cents a jar.

Two Days Left to Enter Roll of Honor for Great World Tour Prizes.

THOSE changes in the standing in the Race Around the World Contest continue. Ida M. Sullivan and Bernard S. O'Kane continue their jumping tactics. The labor candidate to-day vaulted into first position among the girls with an addition of 18,000 votes, and O'Kane wrested fourth place among the boys from Philip Maguire with [illegible] other contribution of 20,000 votes.

These two instances give just a small indication of the terrific battle which is being waged for the prizes. Other instances are not lacking. Get in now and show your hand. Get your name up among the top-notchers.

Gladys Mason, Gladys Waters, Vivian Collins, Grace F. Cohen and C. Augusta Putnam are some of the girls who have already brought in preliminary lists of subscriptions in preparation of the last roll of honor, while Wallace Wentworth and Harold Boggs are among the more active ones in the ranks of the boys.

Two more days—to-day and to-morrow—remain before the polls close for the last roll of honor that will be printed before the winners are finally announced.

These two days are fraught with tremendous possibilities for each and every one of the contestants, if they and their friends will only use these two days to good advantage. Those paid-in-advance subscriptions pile up the votes so very fast, that it is possible in the course of one day to make some terrific jumps in the standing. This holds good, not alone for those who are already in the list of the twenty-nine eligibles, but also for those who are below the "Big Twenty-nine."

Don't Hold Back.

There is absolutely no advantage to be gained now by holding back your subscriptions. In fact, you weaken your chances by holding back. When you make your final appeal to your friends for help in winning one of these magnificent tour prizes, it means something to be able to point your finger and say "I hold this or that position in the race—and with your help I can advance—I can win." The better your standing the more chance you have of winning new friends, of winning new supporters.

Many wide-awake aspirants for these magnificent tours appreciate this fact and have shown their earnestness by some grand and effective voting. It is possible, of course, that some "dark horses" may develop from among the runners-up.

All have a chance, but it is the determined and consistent hustler that has the advantage. He or she is making absolutely certain of the opportunity and bringing in subscriptions at the end of each day's work, getting credit for the day's work. It will mean much in the final counting, which is so soon to come.

Show Your Strength.

Bring in your subscriptions every day. Those of you who are away from Boston send them in every day. Do not hold back to the last. You have absolutely nothing to gain thereby, and you are helping yourself when you make a proper showing of your strength—of your real strength.

This is absolutely the last chance you will have of showing your friends what you are made of. The readers of the BOSTON AMERICAN are watching this race very closely. They are scanning and studying the standing of the contestants, and are picking their favorites. Some of your friends may find your name in the list, and if you have good standing, they are more likely to help you.

All the world loves a WINNER. It pays to be a winner. YOU can be a winner if you will only try.

Indications point to some record-breaking totals to-day and to-morrow—some voting that is likely to alter the entire complexion of the roll of honor. Why should not YOU take a hand in this matter. YOU can do it just the same as the others are doing, or as others have done.

Become a Top-Notcher.

There is absolutely no reason for being discouraged. Many a race is won in the last few jumps. Start your jumping NOW, and if you exert yourself sufficiently there is no reason why your jump should not be successful enough to put you in the front ranks.

Only eleven days remain before the final count will be made. Ten of these will be devoted to blind voting. Where not one of the contestants will have any idea of what the other is doing; in fact, in order to be able to take full advantage of those ten days, it is necessary—it is imperative—that you make a proper showing in that last roll of honor.

Four yearly subscriptions to Boston mean a total of 10,000 votes. Boys who could, by means of four such subscriptions, jump into the very midst of the roll of honor are Harry Hyland, Ellsworth F. Simpson, Charles P. Scott, Arthur Ring, John H. Taylor, James S. Boyle, Harold Kenney and Fred Rehm. Five or six yearly subscriptions would secure a place in a dozen more into that list.

Among the girls who could jump into the list of the twenty-nine leaders by means of four yearly subscriptions are Adrienne Keefe, May Brody, Helena Donovan, Evelyn A. Sullivan, Etta Craig, Esther Kneller, Eldeine M. Young, Ida Baxe, Agnes McIver and Gladys Doane. Among the girls, as among the boys, there are at least a half a dozen, who, with the addition of five or six subscriptions, could jump into that list.

Can Revolutionize List.

Ten yearly subscriptions, which mean a total of 25,000 votes, would serve to jump those who are more than half way down the list up among the leaders, while twenty-five subscriptions would revolutionize the list.

Yet, such a thing is possible, not alone possible, but probable. Any boy or girl who will take four or five subscriptions, and devote it to the work of subscription getting, to the task of winning one of these tours, CAN do it. ALL of you CAN do it.

If you have any fair degree of the aggressiveness of any determination, you will get out and hustle to win. You will not admit that the boy or girl who is a paltry two or three thousand votes ahead of you is any better than you are. By laying idle, by failing to work, the figures themselves, as published, make you admit that there is something in the make-up of that boy or girl above you to which you are lacking, that there is something in that boy or girl in which you are totally wanting.

You are not asking for something of your friends for nothing. You are offering them their money's worth. They, in return, are helping you to gain a prize such as is seldom offered to any boy or girl.

Victory Means Much.

The winning of these tours will serve to give you a great start in life. It will demonstrate to your friends and to the world as a whole that there is something in you, that you are made of the right stuff, that you are worthy of the chance to try for some of the good things in life, that you are worthy of a chance in any walk in life.

JACK JOHNSON IN A NEW DEFI TO JEFFRIES

Jack Johnson has challenged James J. Jeffries to fight one round or fifty within two months, and in a rage calls on Jeff to accept within ten days or "hold his tongue."

Johnson was in a storm when a dispatch from Pittsburg was shown him. In it Jeffries was quoted as saying:

"I have always been afraid of my own strength in the ring, for fear I would kill a man, but I will have no such fear when I get in a ring with Johnson. For the first time in my life I will then hit a man with all the force in me. I want to see how far I can knock him. I hope when Ketchel meets Johnson he kills him. I repeat, I hope he kills him!"

"Fight Me at Once."

Whereupon "Lil' Artha" wrote out the following:

In view of the statement made in Pittsburg by James J. Jeffries, I, Jack Johnson, heavyweight champion of the world, do hereby challenge James J. Jeffries either to fight me at once for my title or henceforth hold his tongue.

I believe he is a true gentleman to the backbone, and to show that I mean business, I hereby challenge him to meet me in the ring within two months from this date, one round or fifty, for the purse of not less than $30,000 for my end and a side bet of $10,000.

Aside from the purse I make but one condition, that Jeffries shall accept this challenge within ten days from date, and as a token of that accompanies cover my forfeit of $5,000, which I have already posted, within two weeks.

(Signed) "JACK JOHNSON."

Armstrong Goes Away.

"I have the greatest respect for Jeffries as the once champion of the world," says Johnson, "but I will not stand for his abuse and slurs any longer. If he means to fight me, why don't he come out like a man and set the time and place? Why don't he cover the $5,000 and I have had posted ever since I returned from Australia?"

Johnson was informed to-day that Bob Armstrong, who he says is to box at the Armory A. A. to-night, skipped to New York yesterday afternoon, after getting a message from Willus Britt, manager of Ketchel, who is to try to dethrone Johnson next October. Britt, Ketchel and Armstrong left last night for Los Angeles, where Armstrong will train Ketchel for his bouts with Papke and Johnson.

The Derelict's Passenger — The weirdly tragic conclusion of this great serial will appear in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

HAND SO BIG TWIRLER CAN HIDE THE BALL

San Antonio has a pitcher who can perform one feat that no other baseball player has ever shown. So far as known, this twirler, by name Abeles, is the only professional pitcher in the world who can take a regulation baseball and hide it in his hand—that is to say, can close his hand over the ball so that no part of it is visible.

This may not seem to be such a feat, when one reads about it, but any person who will take a regulation baseball and close his hand about it will realize how much farther he comes from completely covering the ball than he thought would be the case.

The circumference of a baseball that follows the specifications of the league regulations is a trifle more than nine inches, these being an allowance for variance from nine to nine and one-quarter inches. It is a matter of fact there is not sufficient variance from the set standard of the factories that supply the American and National Leagues to be apparent. Were it otherwise the pitcher would be badly hampered by the difference in size of the balls given them.

Abeles takes a Reach or a Spalding ball and spans it with thumb and either the middle or the ring finger of his left hand—he is a southpaw pitcher—without any great difficulty. Or with thumb and little finger he can come within a quarter of an inch of doing the trick.

The size of his hand is said to be of peculiar aid to the pitcher in his delivery. The San Antonio fans have not had much opportunity to watch him, as he reported late, and has not been on the lot much.

Abeles' special weakness is in fielding his position, at which he is said to be ordinary. He had two errors in twenty-nine games last year, but he was slow in getting to balls that he should field and in covering the bag. He won fourteen and lost eight games, starting the year with Dallas and winding up in San Antonio, after having been let out by Dallas on account of a supposedly crippled pitching arm.

The big-handed boxman had one trial in the American League, being with the St. Louis Browns two or three years since. He pitched a couple of good games, but was let out for some reason and has been in the minors since.

You are never in doubt if you advertise in the AMERICAN.

SOMERVILLE POLICE WIN BALL GAME

The Somerville police defeated the Cambridge police in a nine-inning game at Broadway Athletic field to-day by the score of 16 to 11. The game was replete with many good stunts in the fielding line, and the pitchwork was very good. About 600 spectators witnessed the playing.

Results of Boxing Bouts

ALBANY, N. Y., June 15.—Kid Henry, colored, of Troy knocked out Arthur Cote of Biddeford in the sixth round of what was scheduled to be a ten-round go at the Myers Athletic Club.

* * *

BALTIMORE, June 15.—In a fifteen-round bout, in which there was action every moment, "Dummy" Decker was awarded the decision over Kid Seager before the Princess A. C. For twelve rounds it was nip and tuck, first one having the advantage and then the other. In the thirteenth it could be seen that Seager was weakening and in the last three rounds Dummy nailed in and won by a good margin.

* * *

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—Terry Fitzgerald had a shade the better of Jimmy O'Brien in the windup at the West End A. C. Both men mixed it up, and most of the fighting was done at close quarters. In the preliminaries Johnny Ryan knocked out Eddie King in the fourth round; the Fighting Parson and Young Sam Langford, Danny Stanley Carter stopped Bobby Breard in the first round, and Jack Bradley had a shade on Battling Jacobs, but the bout was stopped in the third round.

* * *

NEW YORK, June 15.—Frankie Mango outpointed Jeff O'Connell in the star bout of ten rounds at the Olympic A. C. in Harlem. The bout was fast from start to finish, but Mango was too clever for his adversary in the semi-final Battling Curley defeated Jimmy Dunn.

* * *

NEW YORK, June 15.—Sammy Smith knocked out Jack Goodney, the newsboy champion, in the middle of the fifth round of their ten-round bout at the Bedford A. C. in Brooklyn to-night. A hard right to the jaw did the trick.

* * *

ALBANY, June 15.—Battling Downey of Boston and Young Leary of Pittsfield fought six fast rounds. Young Leary had a shade the better of it. Both boys showed much cleverness, but Leary earned the decision by his showing in the last round.

HARVARD CREWS GET LIGHT WORK

HARVARD TRAINING QUARTERS, Red Top, Ct., June 15.—The varsity eight went out about 10 this morning for a paddle down to the navy yard and back in short stretches. Coach Wray accompanied them in his single shell, and coached them particularly on slide work and the catch. The men showed up well, but they did not do any hard work.

The freshman eight went out about noon for a very short paddle, simply going to Cow Point, about a mile down stream, the varsity crew doing about the same distance. The work was very light to-day on account of the examinations which are taking place.

Notes of the Red Sox Game

Oh! such costly errors.

* * *

Bureig escaped the swish of the whitewash brush.

* * *

There were a few words spoken in the fifth frame that made the diamond no place for a minister's son.

* * *

Last game of series with Naps to-day. Gee! the huge will be glad to see Larry and his Larrupers leave.

* * *

The locals out-hit the winners seven to four, but errors and bad plays by the Taylorites were numerous.

* * *

In the first round after Niles had been easily retired, Easterly in throwing the ball around in practice made a low heave to second. Lajoie very carelessly swung his head around and picked up the ball on a nasty bound as if it was the easiest thing in the world. It wasn't a grand stand lcatch either, and the bugs clapped their fins in appreciation.

* * *

Manager Lake shook up the Red Sox batting order, putting Gesler in the clean up spot, Wolter next, and then Wagner. Hooper next, and then follows the battery. Even if Gesler doesn't do much in the hit line he will nevertheless be an improvement over Hooper, who has been very weak with the willow lately.

* * *

Wagner made a couple of great stops, but marred one with a poor throw to Wolter. Both occurred in the bleachers. This error cost the Reds a run, as it let Bradley score second. From there he came on Bradley's sacrifice fly. His other play was on Turner's sharp grounder, which he dug out of the ground.

* * *

It appears that the infield should take a little advice from Carrigan, an infield dies. Yesterday Lord and Niles pulled off a pretty double play in the fifth, bunching into each other on Goode's easy pop fly. Carrigan called "Lord!" loudly enough for the fans to hear, but Niles went right on and spoiled the play.

* * *

Niles pulled a very bad break in the fifth. With Stovall on third, Easterly on first started to steal. Archer threw the ball at Niles, but the latter apparently did not see the ball coming until it was right on him. Then he dodged, and the sphere went on to Speaker. Stovall, of course, scored on the play.

* * *

Wagner, who still limped from the injury he received several days ago, led in the error making with two bad plays.

* * *

Gessler, who was moved up to the clean-up by a shake in the batting order, rapped out a pair of peachy singles.

JACK JOHNSON IN BOUT AT ARMORY A. A.

This is champions' night at the Armory A. A., as Jack Johnson is going to spar three rounds with George Byers in addition to the regular star card of two feature twelve-round bouts and a couple of six-round bouts.

The members are expecting a whirlwind scrap when Porkey Flynn and Bill McKinnon start away in their mill argument. It means the wood pile for Porkey or back to the sawil for McKinnon whoever loses. For Flynn a win would give him a position in the local pugilistic roll of fame, where he could command top prices for his services and he is going after the prize. Both lads are very popular with the ring followers because of the success they have been having lately, which warrants a tough battle before one or the other succumbs.

There is not quite so much class to the Kid Perron and Eddie Murphy twelve-round meeting, but it may furnish great sport. Both are ambitious to shine and Perron's style of milling means curtains for himself or his opponent as quick as possible.

The championship of the Navy hangs on the result of the setto between Billie Sherlin of the U. S. S. Missouri and Jack Dunn of the U. S. S. New York. Both cruisers will be well represented and the ... won't want for backing.

George Alger of Cambridge and Gus Rogers, no relation to the comedian, will set the music in a six-round skelch.

The Most Dangerous Woman in the World—You can find out about her in the SUNDAY AMERICAN.

THREE WHEEL STARS MEET IN HOUR RACE

The real thing in motor-paced racing is on the card at the Revere track on Bunker Hill Day, when Floyd McFarland, the lanky Californian; Jimmy Moran, and Elmer Collins, the pride of Lynn, meet in a three-cornered contest which lasts a full hour.

This is a fight between men who never ask quarter in a test of bike endurance and speed, and they try to win by wearing the other fellows down.

Three bigger favorites with the cycle fans would be hard to find in a bunch, as they stand at the top of the game. Moran is out for revenge over a recent win by his rival Collins, and the youngster of the trio is, after a double win on this circuit, as a victory over both McFarland and Morran would settle his standing once for all.

With all three riding in the best of form there is some sensational speeding on tap for the first hour race of the season.

The amateurs will have plenty of work, as there is two events on the card besides a duel between operators on the two-cylinder motors.

RACING AT SARATOGA.

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Saratoga Racing Association has announced that there will be six days of racing each week during the meeting at Saratoga Springs.

AUTO RACERS TEST SPEED AT READVILLE

By J. C. KERRIGON.

Harry F. Grant with his Alco, the car which did such good work at the Worcester hill climb, has been matched against Arthur Hughes and the Allen-Kingston, which likewise performed most excellently at the Dead Horse hill, for a special five mile match race at the Readville track on Thursday next. This match rounds out a particularly well planned and developed list of events, and promises to add much to the excitement of the afternoon, especially since the cars are most evenly matched, judging from their performance in the past. This event, with the Do Lo Palms-Basle match, should do much towards making a close and exciting meeting, and if that be not enough there are a sufficient number of good drivers and racing cars entered for the regular events to produce some good and successful racing.

Two more trophies have been added to the list, one, known as the Thomas Taxi cruisers and runabouts of 30 horsepower and over, and the second will go as the special prize for the class for roadsters and runabouts under 20 horsepower.

Owing to the amateur restrictions governing the contest for the Bailey trophy there are but three entrants, they being A. W. Merriam, T. F. Hall and J. B. Ryall. Just how Ryall can compete in amateur events is difficult to understand, as it is true that he won an amateur event at Worcester. He is generally advertised as being a member of the Buick racing team and how under these conditions he can retain his amateur status is problematical.

The track will be opened for training purposes between 2 and 4 o'clock this and to-morrow afternoon, and the greater portion of the entrants will of course get out and assume the rail birds, and likewise see how they are going. The advance demand for tickets is indicative of an exceeding large attendance on Thursday.

The entries are as follows:

JENKINS LOSES TO CHAMPION GOTCH

DES MOINES, IA., June 15.—Tom Jenkins, former champion wrestler of the world, and the man selected by President Roosevelt as coming nearest to being the ideal wrestler, lost his bout to-night to Frank Gotch, champion world's wrestler.

The first throw was scored in 18 minutes and 20 seconds by a half-nelson and body hold; the second in 8 minutes by a half nelson and crotch hold.

At all stages of the match Gotch demonstrated his superiority and Jenkins was on the defensive throughout the entire match.

WHEN PRAYER AVAILETH NOT

"Instead of Being Impelled by Faith and Trust in God's Goodness, Many Who Pray Constantly Are Impelled by Mental Laziness"

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

MANY people depend on prayer to bring them their desires. Many people doubt the existence of a God when their prayers bring no response.

The refusal of a teacher to give the answer to a mathematical problem would necessitate the mental application of the student, and students are placed in school in order that they shall apply themselves mentally, and find the answer to life's problems.

Before you pray, or while you pray, ask yourself what you are doing by your own mental attitude, and by your own physical exertions, to bring about the result for which you plead.

Are you asking for love and happiness? What are you doing to make yourself lovable? What are you doing to give happiness to others?

Happiness is a seed which must be planted in another's garden before it can blossom in our own in full glory. It is useless to pray to God to send you happiness until you train your mind in this great law.

Do you pray for Success in some chosen endeavor?

What are you doing to bring that endeavor to completion? Are you doing your best?

So few of us are doing our best; so many of us think we are!

Are you praying for good health and long life?

What are you doing to produce good health, and to make long life desirable?

Are you using self-control in your appetite? Are you avoiding the unnecessary and unnatural foods and drinks, and are you breathing with all your lungs, or with only a few cells?

Here is what Dr. Charles Page, one of the oldest and most eminent physicians of Boston, says about over-eating:

"Seemingly, the one eternal scheme of the people in general is to eat. It is not alone the rich and prodigate among us, but practically all classes of our people make eating a mere sensual pleasure altogether, without regard to the real needs of the body.

"In our deeply religious follow citizens, of course, without any evil intent, make the same mistake. Glutted with their three regular meals during the day, the faithful flock to the church basements on festival occasions to stuff themselves with all manner of viands, from bread and beans to cake, coffee and ice cream; the societies' exchequer.

"Catsups and the end of hot sauces are employed at home, at hotels and at church festivals, to rasp the palate and promote a factitious appetency for excessive amounts of nutritive substances, much of which, and in many instances all, is ingested for putrefaction and blood-poisoning.

"The electric cars, hill-boards along the railway routes, as well as the daily newspapers, teem with advertisements of appetizing foods, too bons and sauces.

"All of our literary and religious weeklies and monthlies, as well as the 'woman's page' of all classes of daily and Sunday papers, print innumerable recipes for appetising combinations designed to make the reader's mouth water and induce people to eat more than can possibly be digested and assimilated."

When some of these people fall ill and are in danger of death, they pray loudly to God for help; and if no answer is given they ofttimes blame the Creator for not listening.

Sickness, poverty, unhappiness, do not come from the Creator. They come from within ourselves.

It is well to pray: It is well to provide the mind with the sending and receiving apparatus of wireless telegraphy between the realms visible and invisible; and it is well to keep this apparatus in working order.

The ship which is so provided is oftimes saved in time of danger, while the one without it goes down at sea.

So the mortal who prays receives strength and light and help, which fail to reach the mortal who has not opened his mind to messages from the invisible.

But before we pray, let us work.

And while we pray, let us work.

And after we pray, let us work.

GOD'S ANSWER

Copyright, 1908, by American-Journal-Examiner

ONCE in a time of trouble and of care
I dreamed I talked with God about my pain;
With sleepland courage daring to complain
Of what I deemed ungracious and unfair.
"Lord, . have groveled on my knees in prayer
Hour after hour," I cried, "yet all in vain;
No hand leads up to heights I would attain,
No path is shown me out of my despair."

Then answered God: "Three things I gave to thee—
Clear brain, brave will, and strength of mind and heart,
All implements divine, to shape the way.
Why shift the burden of thy toil on Me?
Till to the utmost he has done his part
With all his might, let no man dare to pray."

His Greatest Victory

A War Veteran's Conquest of Self That Holds a Lesson for All Who Are Growing Old

BY DOROTHY DIX.

THERE lives to-day an old man, Colonel Warren Pulsifer, who was a distinguished officer in the army during the Civil War. Age has found him but poorly provided with this world's goods, and, in addition, progressive paralysis has laid its blighting hand upon him; and for the last twelve years, day by day, he has felt the creeping death in life that is inevitably overtaking him.

When his affliction first came upon this brave old soldier he yielded his soul to despair, and he would have rolled up in his carpet sack all the torments of despair. Then in his Valley of Despond he rallied together his routed forces and made a last stand for his manhood.

With a courage greater than any ever shown on any battlefield, he fought the discontent and complaints and querulousness of age, and gained a greater victory than any Antietam or Gettysburg.

He shut his own lips back upon the railings at fate, and then he conceived the idea of organizing a "Brotherhood of Silence" for the benefit of the discontented old, and concerning its object he writes to me:

"The principles of the brotherhood are designed to restrain and correct one of our greatest besetting sins and weaknesses—the impatience caused by the peculiar temptations and senile afflictions that accompany declining years and the loss of the ability to command wages or make any income, thus compelling us to depend on our associates and relatives who are younger and stronger than we are.

"All the old veterans and other old people will appreciate these facts, and the sentiments and methods for correcting the wrongs and abuses to which our helpless old age and penury lead us to yield."

The Hard Lot of the Helpless Old

I have told the story of this heroic old soldier, who is trying with his poor, palsied hands to life other old people up to his brave, high philosophy of life, for the inspiration that it offers to those whose sad lot in life it is to eat the bitter bread of dependence in their last days.

Perhaps there is no other situation in life that is so hard to bear as for the man who has been successful, prosperous and independent to be poor and helpless in his old age; to feel that his day's work is done and that he has the strength to labor no more; to be an alien in another's house instead of being the head of the house himself.

No matter how freely, how generously, with what love the old are taken care of, there is always a sting in the gift. They feel, and justly, that fate owes them something better, after all of their hard work, than this.

Under the misfortune of dependence many old people grow surly and morose and peevish. They spend their days brooding upon their sorrows. Their conversation becomes nothing but a series of lamentations.

Old age has its peculiar temptations, no less than youth. It is prone to a narrow tyranny and a selfish desire to bind the world by its standards.

It gets into ruts and is impatient of progress and change; and it would be well if all old people would try to recognize these faults in themselves and so correct them.

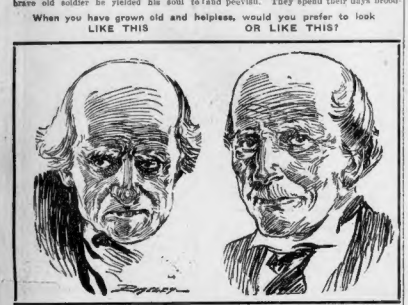
Beauty in Serene Old Age

It is time that the old looked the facts of life squarely in the face, and perceived the injustice they commit, the cruelty of which they are often unintentionally guilty, and the unnecessary heaviness of the burden that they sometimes lay on young shoulders; and, above all, that they realize that in age, as in youth, life is what we make it.

Sad as it is for the old to be poor and dependent, they make it sadder still by giving way to repining and discontent; and the only remedy for it, and for all the ills to which age is subject, is simply to adopt the brave high-hearted and cheerful attitude toward life, the courageous and cheerful acceptance of what the day brings.

And there is nothing so beautiful as the age of those who do this. There is the mellow wisdom that sees the working out of good in everything; there's the courage that is like a flickering flame of glory before our eyes; there's the serene cheerfulness of a Summer day at sunset, when all the storms are past and all is well.

Such old people are a benediction on the world, and they are the saints on earth into which all old people should strive to grow.



The old can be narrow, bigoted, crabbed, despondent, and can make life intolerable for others,

OR

By their courage and patience they can make their presence among others a benediction.

Which Did He Choose?---By Beatrice Fairfax

If Cupid Blindfolded You and Described These Girls to You, Which Would YOU Choose?

The young man took a hasty step forward when Cupid described the roly-poly girl that could cook, and that was like a sunbeam in the house

ONCE upon a time there was a young man who, though very anxious to get married, found it impossible to do so, as he never could make up his mind.

"You are a very difficult case," said Cupid, looking at him severely. "I don't quite know what to do with you."

"I know it," said the man humbly. "You see, dear Dr. Cupid, the trouble is that I find all girls adorable, so how can I choose any particular one?"

"Now, I'll tell you what I mean to do. I'm going to blindfold three troublesome eyes of yours, and I'm going to bring you a number of girls, whose qualities I shall describe, but not their looks."

"Very well," said the victim, "go ahead. My fate is in your hands."

So he selected a number of girls, all equally good looking, but all widely differing in tastes and habits.

"Here," said he, leading forth a tall lily of a girl, "is a girl who has always been used to luxury. She is a great belle.

"I cannot be sure that she has much heart, but she would be a wife of whose looks and accomplishments any man would be very proud."

"M—m—m," said the young man doubtfully, "I think I'd like a little more heart and fewer social accomplishments, perhaps."

"Here," and perhaps Cupid's voice took on just a little bit warmer tone, "is a roly-poly little girl. She has the dearest, roundest, little figure, and she flits about the house like a sunbeam.

"I must confess she is not very strong on the higher form of education, and her only accomplishment is the singing of simple songs in a sweet little voice; but she can cook, and she knows how to make a man very comfortable."

The young man made a hasty step forward.

"Here is an out-of-door girl. She is great on all sports, and the jolliest companion imaginable. I can't promise that she would be much of a housekeeper, but she's a mighty nice girl."

"She sounds very attractive," sighed the young man.

"The next is a college girl."

"I don't want a walking dictionary for a wife," the young man interrupted.

"Don't be so hasty," retorted Cupid. "This college girl is remarkably good looking, and she can talk on other subjects than education. She has been a great belle, and though, of course, she does not know much about housekeeping, etc., she is very clever and she can easily learn all that sort of thing."

"Stop, stop!" cried the man. "I've had enough! My brain is in a whirl. I must have time to think."

"I thought I'd be able to get you," laughed Cupid, "for which girl do you think you want for a wife?"

There was a long silence, and then the young man said humbly: "I think I know which one I want, if she will only have me."

And he chose, well, which one do you think he chose? I know—but that would DEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Getting Into the Game

Not Even Married Yet, but Learning the Gentle Art of Pulling Wool Over Each Other's Eyes

By KENNETT HARRIS

PERCIVAL'S usually happy expression of countenance was changed to one of profound seriousness. Penelope was absolutely anonymous.

"But, it's going to be a fine thing for me, sweetheart, if I manage the business well," said Percival. "It may mean a raise in salary, and—you know what that will mean, honey-bird."

"Ye-yes," admitted Penelope, "b-b-but think of all that time——"

"I don't want to think of it," said Percival. "It makes me feel like telling them to go to thunder with their out-of-town commissions. I believe that's what I'll do yet. Let them send some married man who'll be only too glad to get away for a while."

"Oh, but you mustn't, darling," said Penelope. "That would never do. No, you must be brave and go and—Percival, what do you mean by saying a married man would be only too glad to get away? Do you think that is the way men feel when they are married?"

"Of course," replied Percival, quickly. "No, no, nothing of the kind. There might be some fellow, who wasn't happily married, who would be willing to leave his wife for a little while, but instances of that sort are very rare, I believe."

"If you were ever glad to get away from me, it would break my heart," murmured Penelope.

Will Be Different When Married

"When we're married you're coming with me wherever I go. We'll never be parted a day, will we, little one?"

"Never!" said Penelope. "Will you think of me when you're gone, dearest?"

"Every waking minute," Percival answered. "Of course when I'm occupied with business I can't——"

"Does that mean that you're not going to think of me much?" asked Penelope in an injured tone.

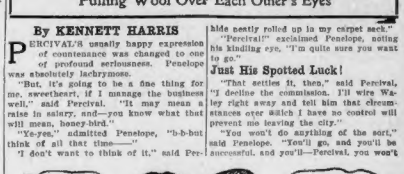
"Certainly not," said Percival, reproachfully.

"Oh, I know that you'll think of me as much as you can, but I don't like to feel that there's any time that you are not thinking of me. It doesn't seem right."

"It isn't right," said Percival. "It's dead wrong, you know, nothing else, as far as that is concerned. I have to keep my mind off you a great deal of the time when I'm at the office."

"But not all the time?"

"If you were trying on a new dress, you couldn't do the subject justice, and be thinking of me, now, could you?"



Those fleeting visions we have, that never, by any chance, come true.

"Percival!" exclaimed Penelope, noting his kindling eye, "I'm quite sure you want to go."

Just His Spotted Luck!

"That settles it, then," said Percival, "I decline the commission. I'll wire Wasley right away and tell him that circumstances over which I have no control will prevent me leaving the city."

"You won't do anything of the sort," said Penelope. "You'll go, and you'll be successful, and you'll—Percival, you won't be too nice to any of the girls you meet, will you? Promise me."

"I don't expect to meet any girls, but if I do I'll turn my head the other way," declared Percival. "And how about you?"

"You know about me," answered Penelope, with wide, innocent eyes.

"I'm afraid I do," signed Percival. "Honey-bird, I'm hanged if I'll go!

"I don't see how I can bear it, darling," said Penelope, and her lip began to tremble again.

There was a soft knock at the door, and a maid entered, bearing a yellow envelope, which she presented to Percival.

Percival tore open the envelope, and scowled as he read the message. "Confound him," he muttered savagely. "If that isn't just my spotted luck! If that wouldn't get your gentle gamelle, I don't want a cent."

"What is it, dear?" inquired Penelope, anxiously.

"Bilkins has settled; I don't go," replied Percival.

"The mean thing!" exclaimed Penelope, indignantly. "Oh, Percival, I could just cry, I'm so sorry."

"Oho, I'm not a Pie-Face Boy. I never fight for pie. But down I always go on Campbell's Soup. Soup-rase king am I."

THE MYSTERY OF THE YELLOW ROOM

By Gaston Leroux

SYNOPSIS OF PRECEDING CHAPTERS.

ALL Paris was wildly excited over the great mystery of the tragedy of "The Yellow Room," in which an attempt was made to assassinate the beautiful and gifted Mlle. Stangerson.

The facts of the mystery were these:

At the Chateau du Glandier, on the border of the forest of Sainte-Geneviève, above Epinay-sur-Orge, lived Professor Stangerson and his daughter. She and her father were doing there first scientific work in radiography—labors that never later to open the way for Monsieur and Madame Curie, the discoverers of radium.

The Chateau, a Paris newspaper, not Joseph Rouletabille, a reporter, to ferret out the mystery. Rouletabille, through his marvelous detective ability, had gotten into newspaper work when but seventeen years old.

Rouletabille's chief object in going to the Chateau du Glandier was to see Robert Darzac, a professor of philosophy, a former lover of Mlle. Stangerson, who had gone to the aid of his former sweetheart in her peril.

Arriving at Glandier, Rouletabille and Sinclair found the Perfect Darzac in great grief. Something had occurred in the chateau, so that the pavilion was occupied by Mlle. Stangerson and Daddy Jacques.

On the night of the tragedy Mlle. Stangerson worked until midnight in the laboratory and then retired to the Yellow Room, her father and Daddy Jacques hearing her lock the door to the Yellow Room, and bolt it from the inside. At 12.30 o'clock, said Jacques, a number of pistol shots were in the laboratory; there were sounds of a terrific struggle in the Yellow Room and Mlle. Stangerson was heard crying, "Murder! Help!"

Immediately afterward revolver shots rang out, and the sounds of the struggle continued for some time; then all was silent.

Mlle. Stangerson lay on the floor in her night gown. There were marks on her throat, as if she had been choked almost to death with fingers; and there was a deep wound on the right shoulder. A revolver that belonged to Daddy Jacques, and which he kept in his safe sleeping room, lay on the floor. It had been fired four times, and it was assumed at the beginning that the bleeding woman was Mlle. Stangerson, though she looked dead.

The only possible clews discovered were bloodstained marks of a man's large hand on the wall and door; a big handkerchief red with blood, with the initial N, and a workman's cap and the footmarks of a man with large feet, whose boot was broken at the left heel.

The Epoque, a Paris newspaper, not Joseph Rouletabille, a reporter, to ferret out the mystery. Rouletabille, through his marvelous detective ability, had gotten into newspaper work when but seventeen years old.

Rouletabille's chief object in going to the Chateau du Glandier was to see Robert Darzac, a professor of philosophy, a former lover of Mlle. Stangerson, who had gone to the aid of his former sweetheart in her peril.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued.)

The Window in the Vestibule.

ROULETABILLE grunted and set to work examining the door, finding that it fastened itself automatically. He satisfied himself that it could never remain open and needed a key to open it. Then we entered the vestibule, a small, well-lit room, paved with square red tiles.

"Ah! This is the window by which the murderer escaped?" said Rouletabille.

"So they keep on saying, Monsieur, so they keep on saying! But if he had gone out that way we should have been sure to have seen him. We are not blind, neither Monsieur Stangerson nor me, nor the concierges who are in prison. Why have they not put me in prison, too, on account of my services?"

Rouletabille had already opened the window and was examining the shutters.

"Were these closed at the time of the crime?"

"And fastened with the iron catch inside," said Daddy Jacques, "and I am quite sure that the murderer did not get out that way."

"Are there any blood stains?"

"Yes, on the stones outside; but blood of what?"

"Ah!" said Rouletabille, "there are foot-marks visible on the path—the ground was very moist. I will look into that presently."

"Nonsense!" interrupted Daddy Jacques, "the murderer did not go that way."

"Which way did he go, then?"

"How do I know?"

Rouletabille looked at everything, smelled everything. He went down in his knees and rapidly examined every one of the paving tiles. Daddy Jacques went on:

"Ah! you can't find anything, monsieur. Nothing has been found. And now it is all dirty; too many persons have tramped over it. They wouldn't let me wash it, but on the day of the crime I had washed the floor thoroughly, and if the murderer had crossed it with his boots nailed boots I should not have failed to see where he had been; he has left marks enough in Mademoiselle's chamber."

Rouletabille rose.

"When was the first time you washed these tiles?" he asked, and fixed on Daddy Jacques a most searching look.

"Why—as I told you—on the day of the crime, toward half-past five—while Mademoiselle and her father were taking a little walk before dinner here in the vestibule, through the window."

"The next day the examining magistrate came and saw all the marks there were on the floor as plainly as if they had been made with ink on white paper. Well, neither in the laboratory nor in the vestibule, which were both as clean as a new pin, were there any traces of a man's footmarks. Since they have been found near the window outside, he must have trodden his way through the ceiling of the Yellow Room into the attic, then cut his way through the roof and dropped to the ground outside the vestibule window.

"But—there's no hole, neither in the ceiling of the Yellow Room nor in the roof of my attic—that's absolutely certain! So, you see, we know nothing—nothing! And nothing will ever be known! It's a mystery of the devil's own making."

Rouletabille went down upon his knees again almost in front of a small lavatory at the back of the vestibule. In that position he remained for about a minute.

"Well?" I asked him when he got up.

"Oh! nothing very important—a drop of blood," he replied, turning toward Daddy Jacques as he spoke. "While you were washing the laboratory and this vestibule, was the vestibule window open?" he asked.

"No, Monsieur, it was closed, but after I had done washing the floor I lit some charcoal for Monsieur in the laboratory furnace, and as I lit it with oil we always let it smoked, so I opened both the windows in the laboratory and this one, to make a current of air; then I shut those in the laboratory and left this one open when I went out. When I returned to the pavilion this window had been closed, and Monsieur and Mademoiselle were already at work in the laboratory."

"Monsieur or Mademoiselle Stangerson had no doubt shut it?"

"No doubt."

"You did not ask them?"

"No."

After a close scrutiny of the little lavatory and of the staircase leading up to the attic, Rouletabille—to whom we seemed no longer to exist—entered the laboratory, followed by me. He was, I confess, in a state of great excitement. Robert Darzac had told me many times of Rouletabille's methods, and I immediately saw, partially at least, the line he intended to take.

My friend, who went about his work methodically, silently strolled the room in which we were. It was large and well lighted. Two big windows—almost bays—were protected by strong iron bars and looked out upon a wide extent of country.

Along the walls were cabinets, pinh or cloth-fronted, through which were visible microscopes, special photographic apparatus and a large quantity of crystals.

Rouletabille, who was ferreting in the chimney, put his fingers down in one of the crucibles. Suddenly he drew himself up and held up a piece of half-consumed paper in his hand. He stepped up to where we were taking by one of the windows.

"Keep that for us, Monsieur Darzac," he said.

I bent over the piece of scorched paper which Monsieur Darzac took from the hand of Rouletabille, and read distinctly the only words that remained legible:

"Presbytery—lost nothing—charm, our the gor—its brightness."

Twice since the morning these same meaningless words had struck me, and for the second time I saw that they also produced on the Sorbonne professor the same paralyzing effect. Monsieur Darzac's dirt eyes showed clearly when he turned his eyes in the direction of Daddy Jacques. Then, suddenly, as if he was at another window, he had seen nothing. Then tremblingly opening his pocketbook, he put the piece of paper into it, sighing: "My God!"

At the Door of the Yellow Room

During this time, Rouletabille had mounted into the opening of the fireplace—which, by the way, had not yet quite the bricks of a furnace—and was attentively examining the chimney, which grew narrower as it went up. Soon the outlet from it being closed with sheets of iron, fastened into the brickwork, through which passed heavy iron bars.

"Impossible to get out that way," he said, jumping back into the laboratory. "Besides, even if he had tried to do it, he would have brought all that ironwork down with him. Now, let us go; it is not on that side we have to search."

Rouletabille then examined the furniture and opened the doors of the cabinet. There was nothing in it but what I thought which he declared no one could possibly have passed. Last the second window he found Daddy Jacques in the vestibule.

"Well, Daddy Jacques," he said, "what can you looking at?"

That policeman who is always going round and round the lake. Another of those fellows who think they can see better than anybody else."

"You don't know Frederic Larsan, Daddy Jacques, or you wouldn't speak of him in that way," said Rouletabille in a melancholy tone. "If there is any one who will find the murderer it will be he." And Rouletabille heaved a deep sigh.

THE MAN BEHIND THE SCENES

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

THE heroine shrinks cringing from the haughty nabob's door,
Instructed, with a parting curse, to darken it no more;
The snowflakes patter on her hair; the biting Winter blast
Shrills up and down the treble scale; the darkness gathers fast—
And then the curtain rustles down; there comes a breathless pause,
And lo! the audience roars forth tumultuous applause.

AND then the man behind the scenes, who made the wind to blow,
Who throttled down the twilight and let fall the mantling snow,
Lights suddenly his briar pipe among the shadows dim;
He knows he made the show a go, but no one claps for him.

THE smoke is thick, the cannons boom, the fight is nearly lost.
"Help! Help!" the wounded Colonel cries; "Send help at any cost!"
Then hoofbeats clatter on the road; a form, besmeared with mud,
Strides in and waves a shining sword; the serried foes retreat.
And we extract a victory from terrible defeat.

BUT oh! the man behind the scenes, whose earnestness and force
Ground out of the "clat-clat" machine the hoofbeats of the horse,
Who rumbled on the big bass drum the cannon's deafening boom,
Blinks glumly and unnoticed to the dingy smoking room.

BEWARE the man behind the scenes! Should he get sore because
He gets the work and worry, and the actors the applause,
And sift the snow from smiling skies, or grind the horse machine
In opportunely in the midst of some great shipwreck scene,
Or let the moon rise slowly up the nabob's parlor wall,

You'll treat him well, if you are wise.

Summer Plays Continue to Draw at the Theatres

Musical Boston filled the Majestic Theatre yesterday to see "The Yankee Mandarin" given in this city for the first time, and the verdict of a critical audience was expressed in very hearty applause. The new comic opera is a distinct success and should win a very large share of patronage during its period of presentation in Boston.

The piece is by Reginald DeKoven and Edward Paulton. Both composer and librettist have scored so many successes that it is no small praise to say that "The Yankee Mandarin" is worthy of them. It is announced that the run at the Majestic is indefinite. If quiet and taking music are what is wanted by the public for a Summer entertainment, the new opera should remain here long enough to give everybody a chance to hear it.

The scene of the opera is laid in Northern China, where a Yankee sailor is stranded, and he answers an advertisement by a mandarin condemned to death unless he can find a substitute. He accepts the job of mandarin regardless of its prospective fate and succeeds to the official's dignities, fortunes and wives. Of course, in the end he escapes execution, and much of the comedy incidental to the piece is involved in the means by which Yankee Mandarin takes to circumvent his foe.

The company is a strong one both as players and singers. In the cast are Ada Lewis, Frank Belcher, William Danforth, George Lydecker, Irene Dillon, Violet Gerson and Hazel Harvey. The chorus is the pick of the Broadway stage girls and has been quite talked about for the individual beauty of its members.

Orpheum.

Lindsay Morison's new stock company at the Orpheum produced Broadhurst's famous farce, "What Happened to Jones," and the success of the opening for the Summer season yesterday was most flattering to the management. Two crowded houses roared through two performances of the farce.

Each actor was given a reception which must have made him feel at home and among friends at once. Howell Hansell, Jessie Bonstelle, Wilton Danforth, Benson Hendrix, Mary Sanders and Rose Morrison strode right into the hearts of the people and everything augurs well that the new stock company's engagement will be memorable in theatrical history of Boston.

Tremont Theatre.

"The Broken Idol" is still at the Tremont Theatre and has made such a hit with the public that it is being talked about all over town. It is just the kind of a show that pleases on a warm evening. There is nothing but fun and music to it. Some of the songs are particularly catchy. The Summer prices are in force now. Otis Harlan heads the cast, and includes this popular comedian are a host of others. There are pretty girls galore, and the costuming and scenic effects are up to the highest standard.

Park Theatre.

"The Travelling Salesman" is now on the third month of its remarkably successful run at the Park Theatre, and the audiences are so big and enthusiastic that it looks as though it would continue to be a magnet there for ages. There are few plays on the stage to-day which can rival it for popularity. It is a comedy with action so fast and lines so witty that one loses all idea of time when watching it. The leading character of Bob Blake is a typical Jaques, Yankee hit, and is well played by Mark Smith exceedingly well drawn.

Keith's.

Neither the crowds nor Vesta Tilley minded the hot weather a mite last night when Keith's Theatre was packed to see and applaud the dainty little actress who doesn't like the coats American men wear, and she, for her part, never acted more pleasingly than she did when she saw how popular she is in Boston, hot or cold, rain or shine. Her songs, "When the Right Girl Comes Along," "Sidney's Holiday" "Jolly Good Luck to the Girls," "Is Father Going to the Footsteps" and "Algy," were liberally applauded.

Bowdoin Square Theatre.

"The Wall Street Detective" is the kind of a play which the people delight in, for it has excitement, love, romance and all the other elements of heart interest. It is being played at the Bowdoin Square Theatre this week by the strong stock company which has won an army of admirers as a steady clientele for this house. Frederick Van Rensselaer appears in the dual leading role, and Charlotte Hunt plays with her usual charm the role of a banker's daughter. The moving pictures are still a feature of the show.

Globe Theatre.

There are several very taking amusement novelties at the Globe Theatre this week to amuse the multitudes who throng to this popular house. The Manhattan Newsboys quartette is singing there, and the Delmar Brothers and Sadie Rourke dog are doing stunts. There are other vaudeville acts in the bill, besides the moving pictures.

Austin & Stone's Museum.

Effie Lorrain made a ten strike hit with the audiences yesterday at Austin & Stone's where she began a fortnight's engagement. Miss Lorrain is the mystery queen, and her acts are among the most puzzling seen on the American stage. Another high class number in the curio hall was the Fortin brothers, acrobats. There were many bills in the theatre stage.

Hub.

Following out his set policy of giving the best show in town for the money Manager Manly of the Hub Theatre has prepared a bill for this week equal to those presented in the highest class vaudeville houses.

Castle Square.

After eight continuous weeks of success with the production of "Ben Hur," the Craig Stock Company at the Castle Square last night returned to a drama, "The Girl at Yale" is a second "Brown of Harvard." College life is depicted with a genuine realism that brought forth cheers from the eyes of the old "grads," and kept the undergraduates and their sweethearts in a continuous roar of laughter.

Palace Theatre.

The New Palace Theatre was crowded at every performance yesterday to witness the motion pictures of the big Burns-Johnson fight, direct from Sydney, Australia. The picture will remain until to-morrow night, and should be seen by all. In addition to this prominent feature a superb vaudeville bill is also given. The feature attraction, however, is the Hawaiian company in the lively dramatic offering, "Lure by Wireless."

Bass Point.

Of the thousands who on Thursday will lie themselves seward to pass a quiet, comfortable day, and escape the din of the celebration, no more choice or exhilarating way is open than to take the trip to Bass Point, where it is always cool and delightful. There are an open-air theatre recently erected, recently erected, devoted to high-class vaudeville; band concerts, boating, fishing, bathing and other forms of entertainment to please everybody. Siemens Georgian Bay Band and General Lincoln leave Otis wharf on nearly an hourly service throughout the day and evening.

Norumbega Park.

There was a great throng at Norumbega Park yesterday to see the varied attractions of a place which is noted among Summer amusement resorts for its fine stage entertainments, its zoo and its other attractions. It is one of the coolest and most beautiful spots on Newton Ground. The "Watermelon Trust" is heading the bill this week. Dove and Dixon and Harry Mayor are also entertainers. Their clever mimicry delights all who see them. There are other acts, besides the very best of moving pictures. The management has perfected theatre plans which provide ample comfort for those who attend the stage shows at this park.

Fishing Grounds Trips.

All who wish to catch fish out of the ocean can have a delightful time by taking a trip to the fishing grounds on the palatial and safe steamer Kingfisher, which leaves Commercial wharf every day, the cooling Sunday. Captain Edward W. Dipre is the skipper of this staunch and comfortable craft. Lines, bait and chowder are furnished free and there is a matron aboard to attend to women and children. Prizes in gold to the amount of $400 are given lucky fishermen. The trip on Wednesday next will be omitted.

Revere Beach's New Park.

Great interest is being shown at Revere Beach in Luna Park, the new amusement resort which is to be opened on Thursday, June 17, when all Boston is celebrating Bunker Hill Day. The new park is a cool, shady place which will appeal especially to family parties.

Puffed Wheat 10c
Puffed Rice 13c

Tell Your Friends About Foods Shot from Guns

You who have tried Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice—who know these new delights. Tell others about them. Every friend you have would enjoy—like you—these crisp, gigantic grains. Please tell them how good they are.

All over the country, people are telling each other about the foods shot from guns.

Our increasing sales show that every morning some ten thousand new homes adopt them. The demand now exceeds, by considerable, a million packages monthly.

But think of the thousands who still cling to corn flakes, to biscuits—to the old-time ready-cooked foods.

They would change, as did you, if they only knew how delicious these new foods are.

The Foods of Today

These puffed foods, invented by Prof. Anderson, are distinctly the foods of today.

We make sixteen cereal foods, including all the old-time fads. So we have no bias whatever.

But we know the public taste. Three people in four, where all cereals are offered, take either Puffed Wheat or Puffed Rice.

These are the foods that people want. They will adopt them as fast as they learn of them.

But people don't know what they miss until some friend says, "Try those delightful puffed foods."

Say it to someone today.

How the Grains are Puffed

This is the curious process:

The whole wheat or rice kernels are put into sealed guns. Then the guns are revolved for sixty minutes in a heat of 550 degrees.

That fierce heat turns the moisture in the grain to steam, and the pressure becomes tremendous.

Then the guns are unsealed—the steam explodes. Instantly every starch granule is blasted into a myriad particles.

The kernels of grain are expanded eight times—made four times as porous as bread. Yet the coats are unbroken, the shapes are unaltered. The result is crisp, magnified kernels of grain.

The Digestible Foods

Puffed Wheat and Puffed Rice are curious, crisp and enticing. But the best fact is that these foods are digestible.

The starch granules are literally blasted to pieces, so the digestive juices act instantly. There is no tax on the stomach.

No other known method—cooking, baking or toasting—ever made cereal foods half so digestible.

It is good to know that the foods you all like best are also the best foods for you.

For Summer breakfasts, luncheons or suppers, these are the ideal foods. Serve with cream, or with fruit, or with a bowl of milk. People never grow tired of them—never seem to get enough.

The Colleen at the Bridge

By JOHN A. MOROSO

SHE wears a rusty, frazzled shawl
About her bonny head;
But O the laughter in her eyes,
Where love in half a slumber lies,
And O the lips so red!

Sweet! Sweet! Sweet!
Do you hear the thrush's call?
Sweet! Sweet! Sweet!
Summer's in the air and all
Of the crowding throng is glad,
And the half of us are mad,
For a listenin' to the tender, teasin' call!

SHE knows the papers that you want,
She hands them with a smile;
And many men surround her,
Each swearin' he first found her,
Each lingerin' for a while.

HER nimble fingers swiftly work;
The change she's quick to make;
She smiles on me and smiles on you—
And, oh, her eyes are heavenly blue,
Deep as an Irish lake!

An' it's Sweet! Sweet! Sweet!
Do you hear the thrush's call?
Ah, so Sweet! Sweet! Sweet!
Summer's in the air for all;
An' the tired throng is glad,
An' the half of it is mad
For a listenin' to the tender, teasin' call.

HIS LITTLE JOKE

THERE is an amusing story of a Highland soldier who, while lying dangerously ill in hospital, expressed a desire to hear the bagpipes once more before he died. The hospital doctor agreed, as there were only fourteen inmates of the ward and none of them was a serious case.

A regimental piper was found to play the bagpipes, and for a long time he paced the ward playing tunes of the homeland. The next morning the piper called at the hospital.

"Well, doctor," he inquired, "how is my countryman this morning?"

"Very well, indeed," replied the doctor "He went to sleep after your entertainment, smiling happily, and awoke this morning a new man. He will rapidly recover now."

"Good!" said the piper. "Good!"

"But," added the medical man, "the other thirteen patients are dead."

Can You Solve This Puzzle?

AN enterprising real estate man laid out a small parcel of lots in such a way that each householder would have light and air on all four sides.

The accompanying sketch shows the arrangement of the eight lots, with a park in the centre. The lots are of uniform size, the width of each lot being three-quarters of its length.

The man asked $1,200 apiece for the lots.

Figured at the same square foot valuation as the lots, can you estimate the value of that inner, star-shaped space?

One hundred prize puzzle books will be awarded among those who spend best awarded among those who send best paper.

TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS: FINANCIAL NEWS

WALL ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

WALL STREET, New York, June 15.—Southern Pacific preferred held by the Union Pacific treasury will be converted into common stock, and the stock will be held as an investment. This is done by Harriman to prove his confidence in the Mexican extensions, which, the insiders say, within a few years will be as profitable as any section of the Harriman system. The possibilities of development in Mexico are remarkable from the Harriman standpoint, and the Harriman followers insist that Union Pacific and Southern Pacific are being held back for purposes of accumulation. They say these stocks will not be permitted to advance to their proper position until the big financial scheme of Harriman is announced from Europe.

There is no question about the Illinois Central's ability to procure any amount of capital at any time it may appear desirable. On February 28 there was $15,000,000 stock held in the treasury. There was also $28,324,000 of authorized but unissued refunding mortgage bonds. While Illinois Central's officials are reticent as to plans to any contemplated financing, the lack of available working capital as shown by the February balance sheet would suggest that the company will take action in the matter in the near future, although the road has a record for carrying a substantial debt. There is undoubtedly an opportunity for adding any considerable amount to dividend or interest charges that would not show a marked improvement than that indicated for the current year, but the bond market would seem to encourage an additional issue at the present time, particularly as bonds of the Illinois Central find a ready sale.

$ $ $

Strength of Wabash preferred has brought out two distinct rumors, neither of which are confirmed, but each of them find believers. One had the Canadian Pacific taking control of the property and guarantee of 8 per cent. for the preferred stock. The other had Lackawanna taking it on a 4 per cent guarantee.

$ $ $

Canadian Pacific was permitted to buy the Wisconsin Central and enter Chicago because the Hill and Morgan interests feared to stir up trouble in the Northwest. But purchase of Wabash by the Canadian Pacific would be a fight to the finish, and would almost certainly precipitate a fight. The low capitalization of Canadian Pacific and its shorter mileage between the two oceans gives it a tremendous advantage over its American competitors, so perhaps the Canadians are not worrying over the possibilities of a fight. The New Haven has shown a disposition to trade with Canadian Pacific, and perhaps the fear of reprisals might compel Lackawanna to let Canadian Pacific buy the Wabash and New York over its lines. Of the two yarns the purchase by Lackawanna seems the more reasonable.

$ $ $

It is not necessary, however, for either of these yarns to be true to account for the strength of Wabash. A good deal of authority for saying that Kuhn, Loeb & Co. have made a deal with the Gould interests whereby $50,000,000 is provided for refunding, with $10,000,000 a year for the next ten years for improvements. The amount of money expended on the Gould system would naturally bring all the stocks up in the market, and Wabash is doing nothing more than it ought to do under those circumstances.

$ $ $

With only one more month to be included, it is plain that the aggregate gross earnings of the railroads will show a gain for the current fiscal year, which for a long season lagged far behind even the unsatisfactory results of 1908. It is expected for refunding, with $10,000,000 a year for the next ten years for improvements. The amount of money expended on the Gould system would naturally bring all the stocks up in the market, and Wabash is doing nothing more than it ought to do under those circumstances.

$ $ $

With only one more month to be included, it is plain that the aggregate gross earnings of the railroads will show a gain for the current fiscal year, which for a long season lagged far behind even the unsatisfactory results of 1908. It is expected by the end of this month that the gain will be sufficient to overcome the loss of 1908. This is considerably more than the tendency of the gross earnings of the 25 railroads whose aggregate figures are used as an index for comparative purposes. Steady gains for each week for the past few months have overcome the heavy decreases early reported, and the trend to-date is now rapidly outstripping that for the corresponding periods of last year.

$ $ $

To realize the nature of the accomplishment of the operator who conducted the movement in United States Steel common it is necessary to remember that the amount of this stock outstanding is $510,510,000, by far the largest single issue of any corporation in America, or, for that matter, in the world. To move such a mass would, under the most favorable circumstances, be a remarkable achievement, but to do it at a time of some uncertainty regarding the business outlook, when conditions in the trade are well under canvass, and while a tariff bill is still under discussion, is altogether extraordinary. The property to-day never was at hand for the task, and the operation had to depend altogether upon the accomplishment on main strength and courage. But these have more than sufficed, as the result abundantly testifies. Speculators have found it profitable to follow where the new giant treads, and with the success of the negotiations for the listing of the stock in Paris his future operations will ring round the world.

$ $ $

In former bull markets it was usual for Pennsylvania to sympathize with United States Steel, because the industrial company furnishes the railroad with a large proportion of its tonnage, and always in accordance with precedent, Pennsylvania has moved up substantially and displayed marked strength of undertone.

$ $ $

Weather reports are favorable, and the fact that the grain markets are quiet induces many speculators who have before given attention to that department of speculation to turn to securities and buy stocks. Little or no attention is at any time paid to the unfavorable character of the bank statement, the improving being that if money became still here a good supply would be furnished by out-of-town bankers.

$ $ $

One good proof of returning prosperity is the general movement toward restoring wages that were cut during the panic. The New Haven is the latest to do this. Wages are being put back chiefly because the important interests of the country have made up their minds that the crops are safe for this year. Last year's crops amounted to eight and a half billion dollars, and this year's are estimated at nine billions for a minimum.

LOCAL LIST IRREGULAR

STATE STREET, June 15.—Market prices were irregular in the local list during the forenoon trading. The seven-point break in Sugar common in New York to 123 was an unsettling factor, although it did little harm. The low price for Sugar here was 124¾ with subsequent rally to 127.

Mining shares, as a rule, were steady but there was no snap to the market. Amalgamated stiffened almost a point the first hour to 85¾, but free offerings caused a break to 85. North Butte weakened fractionally to 58¾ and Copper Range took a 1¼ point drop to 82. There was not particular news to account for the decline in the latter, except that the market was in face of buying orders.

U. S. Steel also took a downward turn of a point to 58¾. New York was a buyer of Miami and Greene Consolidated, but not to an extent to create any unusual movement in either. Curb trading was of fair proportions and prices were generally firm. Chino spurted to 8 on rather heavy trading. Southwestern opened firm, but ran back close to 30 cents.

WABASH ISSUES STOCK FEATURE

By T. C. SHOTWELL.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Wabash issues were the features of trading in Wall Street to-day. The common established a new high record of 24¾ and the preferred of 61¾. Transactions in both issues were on a heavy scale following a wild opening.

Other Gould stocks showing strength and advancement were Colorado Fuel, M. O. P. and Texas Pacific. Strength of these shares was due to reports that $10,000,000 a year for ten years would be put into the properties for improvements.

Harriman issues were fractionally lower, but Reading was half a point higher. Among the specialties Great Northern Ore certificates were the leaders with an advance of 1½ points to 75¾. This stock has been below for the past week and a revival of interest in it is expected as a result of the increased tonnage of the Steel Trust.

Profit taking made its appearance in the Steel shares. The common declined nearly a point and the preferred about half a point.

In London American shares were irregular with immaterial changes in prices.

Larose was the leader on the Curb market with a new high record of 7 15-16. Other dividend-paying silver stocks were also strong. The coppers were fairly active.

EDITORIAL PAGE OF THE BOSTON AMERICAN BOSTON, JUNE 15, 1909

BOSTON AMERICAN

80 AND 82 SUMMER ST., BOSTON, JUNE 15, 1909.

What Makes Bread and Beef So Dear?

We Are Willing to Till the Soil but We Want a Reasonable Share of What Our Produce Brings

From the Department of Agriculture comes the important information that "WE ARE NOT PRODUCING SO MUCH, IN PROPORTION TO POPULATION, AS WE WERE TEN OR A DOZEN YEARS AGO."

We are told that our farms have not kept pace with our increase in numbers.

And we are asked to believe that "this fact alone is sufficient to account for the enormous advance in the price of foodstuffs."

The implication seems to be that nothing is the matter with us—except that MORE PEOPLE OUGHT TO GO TO FARMING.

It is also assumed by most newspapers in the general discussion of the subject that nothing but the lure of the city lights keeps people from farms; that the whole trouble lies in the fact that most of us are frivolous and fond of vaudeville, and that most of the farms are a long way from vaudeville.

The American desires to submit to an intelligent public that the explanation is inadequate. If the United States doesn't produce enough food to feed its people, the matter is certainly serious, and the reason that lies back of the fact is likely to be serious, too.

The idea that the prices of bread and butter and beef are going out of sight because our people hate to work outdoors is not to be taken seriously.

There never was a moment in the history of this country when the out-of-doors life—the life of wholesome agricultural labor and the economic independence that ought to go with that kind of life—made so strong an appeal to the sentiment and aspiration of city men as it does to-day.

The flooding literature of ruralism and suburbanism is only one of the more obvious signs of this prevailing state of mind.

THERE ARE ENOUGH PEOPLE WHO WANT TO GO TO FARMING. THE TROUBLE IS THAT THE PRODUCTION OF FOOD, AS WELL AS THE CONSUMPTION OF IT, HAS BEEN MADE ABNORMALLY DIFFICULT AND PRECARIOUS THROUGH THE RISE OF THE GREAT FOOD TRUSTS AND THEIR ALLIED MONOPOLIES.

The alarming increase in the cost of the necessaries of life is not due, as the apologists of monopoly would have us believe, to a sweeping epidemic of VANITY AND LAZINESS.

It is due to the fact that a few magnates have seized the strategic positions of economic power, and are imposing upon the people a grinding system of ARBITRARY TAXATION.

The people must civilize the trusts and reduce the masters of monopoly to the level of the law, before they can deliver the country from the wolves of hunger that are now baying at the doors.

Note the savage ways of the Beef Trust. It has taken the consumers by the throat.

There was a chance that relief might come from Argentina. Only a week or so ago it was reported that a company to be capitalized at $10,000,000 was being formed to bring beef, mutton and eggs from Argentina. And now comes the cable information that the Beef Trust has secured options on all the big refrigerating plants of Argentina and is in a position to control the beef supply of that country.

THE TRUST IS DETERMINED TO GET ITS POUND OF FLESH, EVEN THOUGH IT HAS TO STARVE THE CONSUMERS OF THE UNITED STATES TO OBTAIN IT.

"Facing Defeat and Destruction"

Merely a Question of TIME When Both Old Parties Shall Come to Dissolution

Cummins, Senator from the stalwart Republican State of Iowa, warns his party that they are rushing over the new tariff schedules to defeat and to destruction.

Good in prophecy, and better in fulfilment. Warnings like this are being multiplied to BOTH THE OLD PARTIES from within the ranks and without. And the foundation of every warning is laid in the conception of HYPOCRISY in either ancient rank.

The Republican party has waxed fat on looting and spoils. Privilege and plunder have done their perfect work. The cohesive power of privilege has lost its grip, and the old organization is falling to pieces because the elements have come to discord over the partition of the protected loot.

The Democracy, hungry and indeterminate, ready to be all things to all parties, and floundering in unbelief, is split to the shoulder in endeavoring to straddle issues and candidates, and can discover no phantom of hope save in a party more divided than itself.

It is merely a question of time when INSINCERE AND DIVIDED PARTIES, like dishonest partners, shall come to dissolution.

We have come out of a time when war memories and sectional prejudices, traditions and time-serving, mock loyalties and subserviency made up the politics of men. In such a time the old Republican party of abolition and victory, and the old Democratic party of defense and defeat, could rally round their shibboleths of section and hold their prejudices for principles through successive campaigns.

But we have come now to a time when issues vital and practical, touching NEW CONDITIONS and forecasting a NEW ERA are here to enlist the THOUGHT, INTELLIGENCE AND COURAGE of the genuine citizen. Loyalty to moribund organizations of the past becomes in many cases treason to conviction and the State. How can Democrats who believe in a "tariff for revenue only" follow the seventeen Senators, a Democratic majority, behind the Republican tariff leader? How can the stalwart old Republicans of privilege and special protection keep step with Cummins and La Follette and Clapp?

To be honest amid the political issues of to-day the citizen and publicist must mentally align himself with the men who think as he does, and organize into parties that will carry these honest convictions to success.

This is what the Independence party tried to do. It yet remains to be seen whether the Independence party lived and fought in vain. Names of new parties are nothing. But the things they stand for are everything.

It is a race to dissolution between the Democratic and Republican parties.

The sooner they are broken and scattered the better for the country and the issues of to-day.

For when they are gone we can rally men once more around their real convictions, and NEW, STRONG PARTIES can carry solid ranks for the triumph of policies that are consistent and sincere.

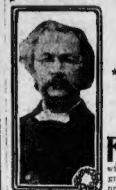
"The Problem of Charity."



Written for the American

How a poor man can be permanently assisted without being degraded is one of the problems which neither social science nor Christianity has solved.

A Winter like the one which has just passed is made disastrous by its depressing effects upon the manhood of unnumbered thousands who have stood in the "bread line," or who have been otherwise maintained by money that was not of their own earning.

This is meant as no censure upon those who have stood in that line, so far as their presence there was due to circumstances for which they were not responsible.

A man of honest fibre has to strain himself to the act of begging when he begs for the first time; but, unfortunately, as in other things that are difficult at the beginning, it becomes easier and easier by practice, till eventually begging becomes easier than earning.

It is an inclined plane down which men slide with an ever increasing velocity.

A male creature is emasculated already when he has reached the point of saying that the world owes him a living. The world owes him nothing, but he owes the world a great deal.

Giving to Those Not in Need Is Unkind.

With one whose character as a man is still sound and genuine the instinctive impulse is to render an equivalent.

Even after one has acquired considerable facility as a mendicant there is in him that lingering trace of the old, manly pride that prompts him to say that he will "pay it back." But he doesn't pay it back.

Speaking from some experience, it is safe to say that not one time in fifty does he pay it back. The promise to do so is rather a reminiscence from weakened manhood than from a distinct purpose to make good.

If one is in the habit of making a record of expenditures he learns after a little to enter such "loans" under the head of beneficence.

The experience was quite a bewildering one when, a few weeks back, an unfortunate friend returned the fifty cents that he had borrowed two years before. A robust young fellow and fairly well dressed, said: "I want to go out to Natick."

"Well, why don't you go?"

"I haven't any money."

"What do you want money for?"

"To pay my carfare."

"How far is it?"

"Eighteen miles."

"Why, that is just a nice walk. Run along. I don't think anything of walking twenty or twenty-five miles."

The ease and sangfroid with which he asked me to pay his travelling expenses showed that he could not have been practicing beggary for anything less than a year. For in this matter, as in others, degree of facility measures amount of training.

Now, it is not a kindness, but the reverse, to do anything for a man of that description. Throwing rocks into a hole of that kind deepens the hole instead of filling it up.

Keep Heart Open for Those Deserving Sympathy

Such cases, however, we ought not to let close our hearts toward those that are deservedly in need of sympathy and practical assistance.

The prime difficulty is in determining who those are that it will be a kindness to help and who those are that it will confirm in habits of mendicancy.

A gentleman who has had a good deal of experience in these matters said recently that he believed that 50 per cent. of the money given in charity does more harm than good.

Such expressions must not, however, be interpreted in a way to make us less generous, but in a way to make us more wisely generous.

Enough Work for All if They Could Get to It

We are hearing a great deal about the immense number of the unemployed. However it may be in England, with its contracted area and its densely and widely distributed population, it is said to be the case in our own country that there is work enough to be done to furnish employment for all who know how to work and who will go where the work is.

There are parts of the country where work is waiting for laborers that are not to be had.

These paragraphs have not been written with a view to discouraging acts of charity but only to the end of diverting currents of beneficence from regions where such irrigation is not required, that thus there may be a more abundant supply for territory whose urgent needs are at present only imperfectly met.
